Several Industries Show Interest in City Funding

By HARRY BARNES

Press-Record Staff Writer

Several Quad-City industries may be able to use low cost financing for pollution control installation under a new commission created Monday night by the Granite City Council.

The new agency—the Granite City Industrial Pollution Control Authority—was established by a unanimous vote of the council under the city's home rule status. The ordinance authorizes the commission to issue revenue bonds to provide funds to industries to meet pollution control requirements.

Mayor Donald Partney said that the bill is modeled from state legislation now pending in the Illinois Senate, but that he considers the city's home rule authority sufficient to set up the local agency without supporting state legislation. Passage of the state law in this year's legislative session would eliminate, however, the possibility that the local law eventually may have to be tested in the courts, Partney said.

William F. Hoelscher, manager of the Manufacturers Association of the Tri-Cities, said that the new source of revenue bond funds provided by creation of the city authority possibly could be used by two or three local industries to finance required pollution installations.

Have Ready Market

Hoelscher pointed out that the tax exempt bonds have a ready market and a lower rate of interest. Proceeds from the bonds issued by the authority could be used to meet pollution control requirements and permit the industries to use their own funds for other purposes, including repairs, plant development and business expansion.

The bond payments and interest would be met by the industry for which bonds were sold in each specific case.

Hoelscher noted that local industries also would be aided by legislation permitting issuance of bonds for industrial development purposes other than pollution control installations.

No Taxes Involved

There would be no taxes involved in repayment of the bonds, and the city would not be responsible for any debts incurred by the authority, Mayor Partney said.

The ordinance approved Monday establishes a three-man board, appointed by the mayor, to handle all applications for funds and the investigations into the merit of each case. The city council would be required to approve the issuance of bonds in each instance.

An aggregate maximum issue of $250 million in bonds is permitted by the ordinance.

Meeting on Route 203 Next Week

A request that a new call for bids for the improvement of Route 203 from Granite City to Mitchell be issued will be made of Illinois Division of Highways officials in Springfield Wednesday, it was reported today.

State Senator Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville) said he has arranged a meeting with William F. Cellini, director of the Department of Public Works and Buildings, and engineers of the Illinois Division of Highways, to discuss the matter.

A delegation from Granite City, headed by Mayor Donald Partney and including representatives of the Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce, will make the trip to Springfield to present the request.

The Route 203 improvement was planned in 1967, but was delayed for nearly a year because of difficulties in obtaining right-of-way for some sections. The project further was delayed by the two-year freeze on highway funds by the U.S. government.

Since the lifting of the freeze in 1970, a bid call for Illinois highway officials failed to result in any bids. A call for bids has been made since the fall of 1970.

The project calls for the widening of Route 203 to a four-lane highway from the north city limits of Granite City to Interstate 270 at Mitchell.

The improved roadway will include a center median for two miles of the three miles of paving.

Cost of the work was estimated at $13 million at the time of the last bid call.

Construction of New School Is Authorized

By MARION BARTOSIAK

Press-Record Staff Writer

Contracts totaling $3,256,496 for construction of a new high school in the Granite City District were authorized Monday night by the Board of Education.

The total is $29,911 more than listed in low bid bids but reflects a selection of alternatives. The successful low bidders are L. Wolf Co., Granite City, $385,321; Amco Plumbing & Heating Co., Granite City, $285,593; and Southern Equipment Co., St. Louis, for food service equipment, $129,463.

Construction costs are $35,729 under the appropriation of $3,332,136, which was the balance remaining from a $4,750,000 bond issue of December 1968. Total amounts of money have been increased by $76,884 by investments of bond money.

The board took action on administration recommendations to expedite the start of construction.

James Sloan, supervisor of the southwest region for hearing impaired, told the board that clustering the classes of the three primary age levels would provide better educational facilities than by having the classes scattered throughout the county.

He said the program currently has 15 children from the ages of 6 to 9 and proposed the hiring of two teachers of the deaf and one teacher aide. With six youngsters from South Roxana expected to be transported here a year later, Sloan said he would recommend the use of three teachers.

Special Education

A discussion was held on the special education program, its policies, methods and problems, by Vasil Eftimoff, administrative assistant-pupil personnel, and several representatives of Parents for Special Education.

Carl Maclos, board president, reported on an organizational meeting of the Large District Council of the Illinois Association of School Boards, of which he was named vice-chairman, on Saturday at Chicago. He said other meetings are planned for March 25 and April 2.

The board employed Monte Koster, 2617 By Lane, as consultant.

ON CAMPAIGN TRAIL in behalf of U. S. Senator Edmund Muskie's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and his wife visited the area Tuesday, making this stop to greet pupils of Harris Grade School in Madison during the students' lunch hour. Mr. and Mrs.

Roosevelt then met with a gathering of about 200 persons in the Madison Recreation Center. They have been campaigning for Muskie for the past two weeks. Roosevelt is in private law practice in New York City.

Among those voicing objections is B. J. Davis, superintendent of Granite City School District Nine, who said the taxes mobile home owners and occupants pay are not sufficient to educate the children from the homes.

He said that the 3,000 mobile home spaces planned in the development, he believes the great majority of them are in Chouteau Township and this school district.

"It is causing me great concern that we are having this many mobile homes proposed and that the majority will be in our school district. We are not geared at this time to undertake to serve as many as several thousand additional children in the district," Davis commented.

He said the average cost to educate each child in the district last year was $888.13. State tax aid pays about half of the cost.

Under a new mobile home privilege tax, which is to become effective July 1, mobile home owners will pay 15 cents per square foot of home, or about $100 per average mobile home.

Supt. Davis said he will present a status report to the board of education at its next meeting Monday, March 20.

Also voicing opposition to the development is a group of citizens distributing 100 petitions opposing the plan. They hope for more than 2,500 signatures to present to the County Board of Supervisors.

The group plans a public information meeting at 7 p.m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Margaret McQuade, 2830 State St.

The planned development is to include 543 acres of golf course and mobile home park, 100 acres along Old Route 66 for a commercial area, 40 acres of industrial property and about 80 acres for a 300-unit apartment complex.

The developers are a lag team of 12 persons headed by Mike Kelly Dasky of Madison and Wolf Construction Co., who undertake the building of the massive project. The Bartlett & Rhutzel consulting engineering firm of Freeburg, Ill., will serve as engineers for the project, designed by Larry

The property is on the border between Chouteau and Edwardsville townships, with more than half in Edwardsville township.

Spotlight on Community Service by Girl Scouts

By DORIS STOTZ

Young people are facing enormous challenges on what the quality of life will be in the future. How they meet the problems of a rapidly changing society will test their ingenuity, imagination and abilities.

How they prepare themselves to meet these challenges is of utmost importance.

One youth-serving organization which is taking the lead in involving young people in many self-directed, self-planned projects is the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. The 1972 Girl Scout Week will begin on Sunday.

Some Girl Scout endeavors are directly related to the quality of this country's physical environment; others concern the interrelationships of people and decision-making.

This concept of responsible citizenship and service with citizenship has always been a basic one in Girl Scouting. Today's Girl Scouts are involved in projects to help close the gaps separating economic, racial, cultural and age groups.

Across the country, girls and adults from urban, suburban and rural areas are working in partnership with national and local community groups toward these goals.

Prepared by their training, the girls give millions of hours of service to their communities. In day camp for ghetto children, in migrant worker camps, in hospital, school and library, in Indian reservations and in hundreds of quality environment projects, the Girl Scouts of all economic and cultural backgrounds contribute their skills.

Nearly 2,500 Quad-City Girl Scouts and 389 adults conduct community service projects throughout the year, including individual troop projects and district and neighborhood services.

Since early 1960, the scouts have observed the Christmas

State Studies Potential of 'Regional' Jail Centers

Copley News Service
Springfield—Fifteen counties at the southern tip of Illinois currently are being examined in a feasibility study on location and construction of two or three regional detention centers to serve the entire area.

Anthony S. Kuharich, chief of the bureau of detention facilities and jail standards in the Illinois department of corrections, said that the southern Illinois study will be followed by others in different regions of the state, and that it will probably "be some years" before any of the regional facilities are actually constructed.

The southern region was picked for the initial study, Kuharich said, because "all the facilities there are so bad."

The study is expected to be completed by late winter. Items which must be studied before inaugurating any regional detention center plan, Kuharich said, include population and population centers, both currently and in the next 40 to 50 years in a region, since most jails are planned to have roughly a 50 year life.

Also taken into consideration, Kuharich said, are such questions as routing and accessibility of the facility from other counties in the region.

Far Below Standards
The regional detention center was suggested after a recent survey of all detention facilities in the state showed that some, usually in more isolated areas, were so far below acceptable standards it was not felt worthwhile to spend money trying to upgrade them.

As an alternative to each of the counties having to provide funds to build an acceptable county jail, it was suggested that some counties might agree

Meat Prices Up-But Competitive System Likely to Prevent Abuses

By HAROLD B. STEELE
President, Illinois Agricultural Association

For the past several weeks, meat prices have been a matter of deep concern to home-makers. Looking at the prices posted in their favorite supermarkets, they recognize the prices are higher than they were a few months ago and some have come to the conclusion that the prices are too high.

I want to tell the farmer's story at a time when all of us, farmers and city folks, are cost conscious.

Over the past several years, prices paid to farmers for their cattle and hogs have varied. These variations are usually connected fairly directly to the supply that farmers produce and the demand created by those who want to serve their families a diet of good pork and beef.

That demand has been increasing steadily as national income has increased, and farmers, for the most part, have responded with increasing supplies. Right now, though, the demand is greater than the supply, and prices have gone up.

The prices farmers receive for meat when it leaves the farm as live animals have been just about as high in the past as they are today. Farmers are getting about 30 cents a pound for choice steers. Strange as it may seem, that's only two cents a pound more than they were getting 20 years ago.

But in the past 10 years, the average Illinois cattle feeder has made money during six of those 10 years. So many of them quit raising cattle.

Those who stayed in the business often sold their cattle at lighter weights to cut down costs of keeping them on the farm and feeding them to heavier weights. This meant cattle feeders were producing less meat.

T-bone steaks and rump roasts are selling at about $1.49 and $1.29 a pound, which reflects the higher prices farmers are paid plus many other things.

Let's look at pork prices. Last year, hog supplies were plentiful and prices were low. Some farmers decided they couldn't afford to continue to lose money and sold out their hog business. Others, unsure of the hog market, reduced the number of pigs they produced and let the market weight.

So, today, hog numbers are down and prices are up. A high quality market hog today is bringing about 25 cents a pound when the farmer sells it as a live hog.

When the lady who pushes the shopping cart goes to the supermarket today, she may find prices on pork chops and hams like this at $1.19 and 75 cents a pound.

During the past 20 years, with meat prices varying some, the prices farmers must pay for the things they need to produce the meat have increased steadily. Costs of equipment, seed, gasoline and oil, farm chemicals and taxes, have skyrocketed.

Farm income, even here in Illinois, has not kept pace with these increasing costs of production and producers and farmers have been upset for a long time that they must work harder to make less.

Adding to the problem, a lot of farmers are further upset because they think consumers think farmers are getting rich on higher meat prices... and that just isn't so.

I have been talking about higher meat prices, not high meat prices. I am not trying to say meat prices aren't higher than they were a few months ago, because they are. But they aren't high compared to the steadily increasing income the Illinois family has to buy meat with.

In the 20 years that meat prices have been varying up and down, income has increased 14% a year. The average family is spending a smaller part of its income to eat better, not a greater part.

As I've talked about the prices are paid for live animals, you've probably wondered what happens between the few cents the farmer is paid and the price you pay at the meat counter.

First of all, the farmer is paid for a whole animal—only part of which is salable as meat. The average hog, after it is butchered and prepared into hams and pork chops and the lesser cuts, produces only about 71% of its market weight in meat. A choice steer produces only about 61% of its market weight in steaks, roasts, hamburger and other things.

Everyone who handles the hog or steer after it leaves the farm is bothered by rising costs, too. Transportation costs, meat processing costs are up, salaries for those who cut meat and wrap it for the meat counter have risen and the retailer is squeezed, too.

So, if the farmer isn't to blame for meat prices and if the retailer has problems, too, who is the culprit?

We can blame inflation, and that is part of the answer, but most of the answer is in the simple fact that meat prices—no matter what they appear to be—have gone up much less than most other things you buy. They have certainly gone up less than the income the family has to buy meat with.

Now, how about the future? Will meat prices stay at their present level? Probably not. Current meat prices reflect the fact that prices were low about a year ago. Today, stimulated by higher market prices, farmers will respond by producing more meat, supplies will increase, and prices may go down.

Stated in oversimplified terms, low meat prices today would cause higher prices later and higher prices today cause lower prices later.

In a national atmosphere of controls on most prices and wages, there are those who say the government ought to control meat prices. But a quick look at the history of controlled food prices shows clearly that such a step would cause a lot more harm than good.

Those who remember the rationing stamps and controlled prices of World War II remember that controls bring problems, too.

The results were shortages, long lines in front of meat counters and, eventually, black market meat sales to people who were willing to pay more than the going price set by the government.

Home-makers have been buying more meat over the past several years because they have had more money to buy it with. Not even controls would turn off the growing demand—a demand which is better set by the money than by the government.

Farmers will produce what the consumer will buy, for the most part. Occasionally, supplies may be short of the demand as they have been in the past few weeks.

But over the long haul, the homemaker will get better meat and better prices if she is willing to let the competitive free market system work. If she does, it will work to her benefit and the benefit of the farmer who produces the good food she serves her family.

Harris Charges GC Steel Merger Nixon's Error

Allowing Granite City Steel Co. to merge into National Steel Corp. was an error on the part of the Nixon administration, U.S. Sen. Fred Harris (D-Okla.) said at a gathering at the Holiday Inn last St. Louis Monday.

Harris said President Richard M. Nixon allowed the two companies to merge into the third largest steel producer in the country because "we have a kind of corporate socialism in government and big business."

He said the antitrust division of the U.S. Department of Justice ruled the merger would be in violation of antitrust laws but the President failed to oppose the merger despite the ruling.

Harris was in Illinois Monday supporting the Democratic candidacy of Dan Walker for governor. He explained his support of Walker does not mean that he opposes Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who also is seeking the governor's chair.

Higher Board Revises Building Priorities

The Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday assigned higher construction priorities to classroom buildings requested by Southern Illinois University-Southwestern.

The board adopted a revised ranking which lists a classroom and office building for the SIU-SW Business Division as priority number five and a classroom and office building for the Education Division as priority number 13. Twenty-nine projects are on the list.

Previously the Business Division building had been ranked priority seven and the Education Division building priority 14.

University officials have been urging BHE action to help relieve overcrowded classroom conditions. A 1970 Illinois statewide space survey shows the Southern Illinois campus has the highest classroom space use of any of the public universities. The campus was originally planned for 2,000 students and enrollment in recent years has topped 13,000.

B. D. Hudgens, vice-president for business affairs at the University, and members of the BHE staff, have expressed some concern that bids on the dollar limits established by the legislature when the appropriations were passed two years ago.

The Business Division building is budgeted at $7.7 million and the Education Division building at $6.5 million.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schmidt, club leader, and Mrs. Ruth Malotki, her assistant, will be in charge of the sale.

Members are to meet on the parking lot at the home at 2:15 p.m. when they will entertain patients with Easter carols and will distribute tray favors and cookies which they are making.

Carolyn Goldschick, junior leader, outlined the plans.

Janet Jackich, a guest, was introduced. Dawn Portell, vice president, opened the meeting and reports were submitted by Jane Friedrich, secretary, and Kathleen DeRuntz, treasurer.

Mrs. Josephine Uram, project leader, and Mrs. Margaret DeRuntz, her assistant, announced the sewing group will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 16, at Nameoki United Presbyterian Church. The junior leaders led a sing-along, and Carolyn Goldschick accompanied on the piano.

Players Unveil Roaring Twenties Musical 'Anything Goes' Saturday

"Anything Goes," a roaring '20s camp musical set on board the S. S. America, a luxury liner enroute from New York to England, will be presented by the East Bank Players at 8:15 p.m. Saturday at the Polish Hall, 826 Greenwood St., Madison.

Two additional performances will be staged Friday and Saturday evenings, March 17-18, at the same time and location. Tickets, priced at $2 each, may be obtained at the Polish Hall, several local retail stores or from cast members.

A production sparkling with colorful costumes and Charleston dances, reminiscent of the late 1920 era, the Players' presentation will include all the Cole Porter hit numbers from the original New York version: "Let's Kick Out of You," "Blow Gabriel Blow," "It's De-Lovely," "You're the Top," among others.

Cast and Roles — Cast members and their roles are: Carole Humphrey as Hope Harcourt, a beautiful American heiress; Peg Essenpreis as Mrs. Wadsworth Harcourt, Hope's society mother; Pat Milster as Bonnie LaTour, a burlesque queen and gun mull; Norma Mendez as Renee Sweeney, ex-convict and night club entertainer; and Renee's angel — Purty, Connie Becerra; Chastity's Angel Skerle; Charley, Debbie Bair; Virgie, Debbie Gargac; Faith, Linda Treadwell, and Mervyn, Don Yall.

John Payne as Sir Evelyn Oakleigh, Hope's foppish fiancé; Stanley Coleman — Billy Crocker, a broken down broker and romantic lead; Amerik Kachipous Wall Street broker; David Hughes-Bishop Dobson, a missionary; Mike Tharp-Moonface Martin, public enemy No. 1 and Dan Filkins—ship's purser; and Glen Halfacre—ship's officer.

Shipboard Action — The entire action of 'Anything Goes' takes place on the S. S. American during its voyage across the Atlantic. Sailing from the lovely American heiress, Hope, her fiancé, Sir Evelyn and Hope's mother.

Among the others on board is Billy Crocker who stows away after discovering his former girl friend, Hope, is planning to wed Sir Evelyn. Billy uses a passport and ticket from gangster, Moonface Martin and his moll, Bonnie, which sets in motion the action.

Moon and Billy change disguises to keep from being recognized and Renee Sweeney tries to vamp Sir Evelyn to distract him from Hope. Several journeys are traded before the hope matched with Sir Evelyn and Moon and his moll together.

Patrons at all three Players' performances will be seated in a cabaret style setting, a trademark of the theatrical company's presentations here. Refreshments will be available to the audience.

Laudromat Entored — The owner of the Madison Laudromat, 608 Madison Ave., told police at 6:15 a.m. yesterday that he found the coin box of a dryer open when he opened the building. Police believe the intruder forced the door. It is unknown if any change was taken.

Nutrition Program Madison Rotary Topic

Functions of an expanded nutrition program being conducted in the Quad-City area were explained Wednesday at the noon meeting of the Madison Rotary Club in the Madison Recreation Center by Miss Darlene Heer, assistant extension advisor from the Cooperative Extension office of the Department of Agriculture.

Miss Heer explained how the program, which was begun in 1967, is active in 37 Illinois counties, in an effort to help low income families with food buying, preparation and diet.

Working through local neighborhood residents assigned as program assistants, the nutrition program deals directly with about 50 families.

Rotarian Jack Friedman was program chairman. Mrs. Leora L. Howlett, mother of Dr. E. Mann, I have supported enclosed reformers, including Mike Bakalis, both Adlai Stevenson, and Paul Douglas.

"As a slated candidate and as lieutenant governor I have differed both publicly and privately with leaders of my party."

"At the 1968 Democratic Convention, I differed with the majority of the Illinois delegation in voting to seat the Julian Bond delegation and support the peace plank for the platform."

"I differed with party leaders over the ethics bill and the bond issue to build more highways."

"The question to ask of political reform is not, 'Does it sound good in a speech?' but 'Does it make government more responsible to the needs of its citizens?'"

"I have not always agreed with the results of state-making, but the process has allowed the emergence of independent, competent but largely unknown candidates like Mike Bakalis, who would likely have not had the money or political organization to have won without endorsement."

"In a state with the geographic, political, and ethnic diversity which Illinois has, endorsement of candidates by party leaders is a check against

Commitment to Reform Matter of Conscience, Not Endorsement--Simon

The measure of a candidate's commitment to reform is not whether or not he is running with party endorsement, but whether he will act according to his conscience and his understanding of the state's best interests, Lieutenant Governor Paul Simon said yesterday at SIU-SW.

Simon spoke at the Goshen Lounge on the local campus. "Five of the seven times I have run for office I have run without party endorsement," Simon said. "I am as committed to reform now as I was then."

"I have supported reformers running without endorsement, including Al Mikva and Bob Mann. I have supported enclosed reformers, including Mike Bakalis, both Adlai Stevenson, and Paul Douglas.

"In a state with the geographic, political, and ethnic diversity which Illinois has, endorsement of candidates by party leaders is a check against the imbalance which could result in Democrats from Cook County sweeping every primary and losing every general election."

Can Be Improved
The slate-making process can be improved, I advocate making the candidates' statements and questioning open to the press, so they can evaluate the process, and report more accurately. This would provide a greater protection to the public and the candidates."

"I have worked for other internal reforms, including for years sponsoring legislation — finally adopted — to call on candidates for delegate to national conventions to list their presidential preferences on the ballot."

"Other reforms to increase citizens' access to government go beyond party structure. I began to introduce resolutions to permit 18-year-old vote 17 years ago."

"Limitations on campaign spending and encouragement of contributions from small groups will help minimize undesirable influence on the elections."

"As Governor, I will increase the role of Lieutenant Governor Neil Hartigan as intermediary between citizens and the government. The 4,800 inquiries I have received since I began the Ombudsman program point to the need citizens have for help getting through the government maze."

"I will make the office of Governor much more accessible to the public than it now is."

"We should consider reconstituting the state committee on petitions. During the early days of Illinois government, any petition from a group of citizens automatically went to this legislative committee for consideration. It gave people a channel to government they do not have now."

"Massachusetts, any citizen can file a bill for consideration and it is automatically referred to the public. If it fits into the New England tradition of having people directly involved in the decision-making process."

"State government must take the lead in opening ways for citizens to participate in the decisions which will affect their lives."

Cong. Price Backs Bill to Hike 'Impact Area' Funds

Cong. Melvin Price (D-East St. Louis) has announced his sponsorship of a bill to increase, to $475 million assistance to special impact areas authorized under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

"The Nixon Administration," said Cong. Price, "has launched an urgent study to uncover the reasons for persistently high unemployment and recommend ways of attacking the problem. Results of that study so far indicate that the Administration is ready to consider the pros and cons of expanded public service employment akin to the WPA, or Works Progress Administration, which was one of the New Deal measures used to soak up heavy unemployment in 1932-33."

"The 92nd Congress, during the First Session, provided the Administration with the necessary tool to test this approach under today's conditions."

"The new bill I am sponsoring is in the form of legislation called 'accelerated public works' which embraced, in fact, the concept of soaking up unemployment by providing 80% Federal grants to local governments to build permanent public facilities."

"However, although this measure was overwhelmingly approved by Congress, the President vetoed the proposal. Last summer, the President fortunately signed into law the Emergency Employment Act, which has already provided jobs and prevented unemployment from inching up even higher. As a result, the Administration is now reconsidering its first position on the accelerated public works proposal."

The accelerated public works bill vetoed by the President also extended the Accelerated Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 and the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965.

"In order to keep the Economic Development Act and Appalachian programs alive," said Congressman Price, "it was necessary for the Congress to pass another bill, which the President signed last August (Public Law 92-65). In this legislation, some remnants of the vetoed public works bill still were present in that assistance could be expanded to communities designated as 'special impact target areas' to provide immediate useful work that would reduce the high rates of unemployment in those areas. The new bill I am sponsoring would increase assistance to 'special impact areas' under Public Law 92-65. The net increase would be $195 million."

"Public service employment legislation," said Price, "has assisted in meeting the needs of communities by providing jobs and services that these communities can no longer afford. However, it falls short of creating employment in the construction industry, including the building trades, that segment of our economy that suffers from an unemployment rate double the national average. This new bill is designed to alleviate this situation."

Eligible cities and counties with extraordinarily high rates of unemployment have lists of much-needed public works projects that could be initiated at once to correct drainage systems, sidewalk improvement, libraries, police stations, community centers, street lights and traffic signals, airport facilities, hospitals, warehouses, water purification plants, and so forth. In addition to sewage systems and many others that will aid in cleaning up our environment."

Burglar Loots Home
Barbara Stills, 1728 Cleveland Blvd., reported at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday that after 7:30 a.m. Tuesday someone forced the front apartment door to her bedroom and stole a $100 console television set, a $120 stereo, a $22 clock radio, sheets and pillow cases valued at $17, records and albums valued at $200, black metal plaques, photos of children and several student nursing books.

$160 Tools Stolen
A tool box containing assorted mechanics tools valued at $160 were stolen from the trunk of the 1968 auto of Clifford Grand, 29 Breckinridge Lane, while it was parked at St. Elizabeth Hospital, he reported at 5:40 p.m. Tuesday.

41st Governor's Youth Conference Held Today

The 41st annual Governor's Conferences on Youth gets underway today with a regional conference today at St. Teresa Academy, East St. Louis.

Nearly 500 persons, youths and adults, are attending the day-long event, according to Peter B. Bensinger, director of the Illinois Department of Corrections.

The conferences are presented under the auspices of the community services unit of the department's juvenile division, with the cooperation of scores of other public and private agencies.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie was scheduled to address the gathering at a luncheon and to present Governor's Citations to persons or groups selected for outstanding volunteer service to youth.

Mayor James E. Williams Sr. of East St. Louis is chairman of the area conference, and representatives of local social agencies comprise the planning committee.

The program is featuring eight workshops on juvenile problems, ranging from drug experimentation to the health and social development of adolescents. Excerpts from the Illinois Arts Council's "Puppets and People" program were given at the opening session, and Dr. Robert Jacox of State Community College, East St. Louis, delivered the keynote address. "The Search for Identity" is the theme of all six conferences, according to Bensinger. Other sessions scheduled for this year are: Moline, April 6 and 7; Chicago, April 13 and 14; Rockford, May 4; Effingham, May 12; and St. Charles, May 18. All conferences are open to the public without charge.

In recognition of the meetings, Ogilvie has proclaimed six separate "Youth Days" in Illinois this spring. Today will be "Youth Day" in the seven counties comprising the East St. Louis region.

Illinoisans Boost St. Pat's Day, Want Ireland as State

Quad-Cityans are among those being contacted by an Illinois group known as the Committee to Make St. Patrick's Day a Legal Holiday.

As Co-Chairman Edward Moran and Dave Condon describe it, "We invite you to join us in arranging what will be the world's greatest event since the discovery of the Shamrock or the invention of the brick."

"March 17th, the date we emphasize, already is an international holiday. It is even more sacred to the Irish than election day."

"We propose to convince the government to acknowledge this legally, so that we can close the banks for the day, and thus the bankers could join us at church on this magnificent occasion."

"Fortunately, the world will be improved if we can lure the bankers into church one day a year. What better day than the one honoring our great patron, St. Patrick? Eventually we may expand to have St. Patrick's Day celebrated for one week."

"Making St. Patrick's Day a legal holiday will be a boon to the working man, of which our nationality has great numbers."

Ebersoldt Re-Elected as Levee Board President

William "Mike" Ebersoldt of Venice was re-elected yesterday as president of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District for the 1972 fiscal year, terminating a delay since January in reorganization of the levee board.

Ebersoldt was nominated for re-election by Lawrence Tolar, East St. Louis, a trustee who sought the presidency early this year and caused postponement of the reorganization session. James Pirtle, the other member of the present three-man board, gave his second to the nomination and Ebersoldt's re-election was by acclamation.

Ebersoldt became president of the board in August 1971, after Morris Campbell resigned that post.

The board also approved a new contract for employees who belong to the Teamsters Union. It provides a raise of about $80 per month for employees in the St. Clair County area of the levee board and an equivalent in raises and insurance for Madison County Employees. There are 18 employee members of the union in Madison County.

Urges Tighter Controls
Pirtle, who was appointed to the levee board by Governor Richard Ogilvie to provide a third member after the conviction of former Trustee Morris Campbell on theft charges two months ago, reported that state officials have recommended tighter management controls for the district.

Pirtle said he met in Springfield Tuesday with William Hanley, legislative council for Governor Ogilvie; John Guillou, chief of the Illinois Division of Waterways; and Peter Brown, assistant to the director of the Illinois Department of Local Government.

He said the officials criticized the "poor supervision" of the district and recommended a change in the administration and more qualified personnel. The levee board will meet in special session tomorrow to approve a new tax levy for the district. Passage of the levy will clear the way for the issuance of tax anticipation warrants to finance district operations.

Book Rental Deadline

The Textbook Service of Southern Illinois University-Southern will extend its deadline for installation of equipment for March 13 for students who must return rented textbooks before the close of the winter academic quarter.

Thieves Stole Candy

Burglars broke the front picture window and stole about $15 worth of candy from Jackie's Dairy Cone, 4149 Pontoon Road, Pontoon Beach, the owner told police this week.

New Deadline Set for Secondary Treatment

A new deadline of July 1972 was set Tuesday by the Illinois Pollution Control Board on secondary waste treatment by municipalities and sewage treatment systems; bacteria used to consume up to 90% of the organic matter in sewage.

Meeting in Chicago, the board also set a December 1973 deadline for installation of equipment for tertiary purification. This advance treatment purifies waste water so that it may be reused.

Discussing the July 1972 secondary treatment deadline, the board warned of substantial money penalties and bans on new sewer connections if communities do not attempt to comply.

Granite City currently is in the process of upgrading its treatment plant from primary to secondary.

Job Prospects Up Slightly for College Grads

Employment prospects are looking up slightly for this year's college graduates at Southern Illinois University-Southern and throughout the country. According to a survey released by the national College Placement Council, a mid-year report shows that activity at the bachelor's degree level is running behind 1970-71. However, the survey shows the number of job offers is down only 4% from last March, compared with January of last year when the volume was down 14%.

According to David R. Van Harn, director of Placement Services at SIU-SW, the national figures are similar to placement statistics here. In the current tight market, students here are accepting offers more rapidly than when employer competition for candidates was keen. So employers this year have to make fewer offers to fill an opening.

According to the national survey, a rapid turnaround at the master's degree level appears to be significant. In January of this year the volume was down 16% from a year ago, but in the current report, the volume has jumped about 28%.

At the bachelor's level, the survey shows that among the 139 colleges reporting, public accounting firms have made the most offers to date. This year the utilities group is second, and the next most active groups are petroleum and merchandising. The humanities-social sciences category is at about the same level of activity as last March.

$1,774,000 Is Pledged To Build New Hospital

A successful drive, with $1,774,436 pledged, was announced Tuesday night at SIU-SW by backers of a hospital proposed for construction on Route 162 a quarter-mile east of Route 159. State and federal funds for the $9½ million 123-bed project are uncertain due to a recommendation by a study committee of the Alliance for Regional Community Health that there are sufficient beds at other hospitals.

The proposed hospital is to be jointly owned and operated with Christian Welfare Hospital, East St. Louis.

MORE ABOUT

Opposition

Just east of the present Keen radio station property, continues east almost to a levee board drainage creek between Mitchell and Route 157.

On the south, the property fronts on Old Route 66. On the north it joins a large industrial tract southeast of South Roxana.

Mayor Sasyk said the land trust has been acquiring the ground for several years.

The largest portion will be 540 acres of mobile home park intertwined with an 8½-hole golf course.

The mobile home development is ready for construction and will be the first phase to be started, Sasyk said.

The second phase will be the completion of the golf course, he added. Along Old Route 66 at the south end of the project, a 100-acre commercial area is envisioned, Sasyk said that at present a motel and a restaurant are being planned as the first commercial buildings on the site.

He explained the businesses would be operated by area businessmen but ownership of the project has yet to be settled. The commercial area also would be split between the two townships.

The third phase will be the construction of a 300-unit apartment complex with between four and eight apartments per building. Plans are incomplete but about 40 buildings are contemplated.

The apartment complex is to be located on the eastern side of the property, completely in Edwardsville Township.

The final phase of construction will be the creation of an industrial park in a 40-acre rectangle area of land in Chouteau Township adjoining the western side of the mobile home park at the north end.

Plans also are incomplete for the industrial park and if there is an immediate demand, it may be built before the apartments or even the commercial area, Sasyk indicated.

"It will be one of the most modern and complete projects in the state of Illinois and it will be close to Granite City."

Ribbon Cutting Opens New Confectionery

Mayor Donald Partney of Granite City presided over the official ribbon-cutting ceremony for Millie's Food Shop, 3202 Maryville Road at 11 a.m. yesterday.

The new confectionery, owned and operated by Mrs. Millie Hordesky, 1532 Joy Ave., was opened when construction was completed three weeks ago.

A grand opening sale is to begin tomorrow and is to run through Sunday. Free candy and balloons will be given to the children and adults will be welcomed by sale prices and double trading stamps.

"The store fills a need in the neighborhood at which we needed it. It also gives the Parkview children a place to buy candy and a candy bar, which they could not do before," Mrs. Hordesky said.

"The confectionery is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days each week."

The county board considered the project at its Feb. 16 meeting and voted to withhold action until the April 19 meeting to allow time for further study.

MORE ABOUT

Plan for

claimed ferrous metallics must meet to be competitive in the scrap market.

"Our motivation is simple," Stinson added. "We produce the steel used to manufacture one can in four of the 65 billion cans that are consumed each year. That obligates us to help develop economical and effective systems to recycle that portion of the nation's solid waste."

With Stinson as chairman, National's Wheel's new solid waste task force has these members:

F. E. Tucker, vice president-environmental control, vice chairman.

L. P. Bruckel, vice president-plant products sales.

J. G. Redline, president, Weirton Steel, Weirton, W. Va.

G. W. Gould, president, Great Lakes Steel, Detroit.

H. M. Love, president, Midwest Steel, Portage, Ind., and Granite City Steel, Granite City, Ill.

Serve With Committee

Serving with the committee will be several specialists responsible for specific investigations carried out by National Steel Research and Development and its operating divisions since March, 1970. These include W. T. Saunders, assistant vice president, W. Wilson, general manager-in-plant products sales; E. J. Ostrowski, division chief-process metallurgy research; and W. M. Smith, director-environmental control.

This group, Stinson said, will respond to the demands made upon it. Its members will make technical and commercial information available. They will attempt to relate their knowledge and experience to situations they are asked about and will inquire to avoid needless delay and difficulty.

No charge will be made for any service where it can be useful, the task force will assist in design, engineering, or similar professional activities without fee.

There are a number of areas in which some expertise is helpful when cities consider the reclamation and recycling of their solid wastes," Stinson said.

Particularly in the area of magnetic separation and sale of solid wastes for steelmaking, these men have accumulated expertise. It is their purpose and mine to make it as available and useful as possible.

Even though the nation's solid waste problem grows larger and more urgent each year, Stinson said, several advantages exist which should make possible a successful attack on it.

Systems Exist

"One advantage is that refuse collection systems already exist," Stinson said. "Another is that steel is magnetic—hence easily separable. A third is that a national network of scrap processors already exists to accumulate mill quantities of scrap and prepare it for recycling."

"A fourth advantage," he pointed out, "is that a huge scrap market—up to 30-million tons per year—already exists in the steel industry. We believe we enlarged that market significantly in January when we demonstrated publicly at our Great Lakes steel plant, at Detroit, that ferrous metallics, mostly scrap steel cans, claimed from incinerated municipal refuse, can be charged successfully into blast furnaces. This is important because it opens the first new scrap market our industry has provided in years."

All these advantages define and simplify the problem," Mr. Stinson said. "It is to fit the product of a new source of scrap—municipal refuse disposal systems—into an existing scrap-consuming apparatus. There will be some severe technical problems, to be sure. But we see none which appear insoluble. So we are organizing to perform our part of the job."

Judges Named for Area Posture Poster Contest

Dr. E. W. Walton of Granite City, state chairman for the Correct Posture Poster Contest for the southern half of Illinois, today announced the appointment of contest judges.

They are Eugene Alassi, art education consultant for the Granite City School District and past president of the Illinois Art Education Association; Mrs. Valerie Eyenden, women's editor of the Granite City Press-Record; and Marvin Van Metre, executive director of the Tri-City Area YMCA.

Hundreds of colorful posters have been submitted by fifth and sixth grade pupils from schools in Southern Illinois, Dr. Walton said, including many from Quad-City area schools.

The contest is part of the educational program of the Illinois Chiropractic Society. Winning entries from Southern Illinois will advance to a state-level contest at Chicago, for competition against other regional finalists.

First, second, third and fourth place winners at the district level will receive trophies. The grand finalist in the state contest will receive a $100 U. S. Savings Bond and a trophy to be presented to the contestant's school.

Posters entered in the contest are designed to convey a message or slogan relating to correct posture. Dr. Walton explained. Judges will base their decision on a forcefulness of message, artistic ability, neatness and originality.

Each child who entered a poster will receive a "Correct Posture Participation Certificate." The winners will be announced during "Correct Posture Week," set the first week in May.

Surveys by the White House Conference for Child Health have shown that 80% of all children have poor posture and faulty body mechanics, Dr. Walton said.

Since good health and posture go hand in hand, the need for educating children in adopting correct posture habits is urgent.

To help correct this serious problem the American Chiropractic Association annually sponsors National Correct Posture Week from May 1-7, the longest of the usual time. Guests are to try dishes prepared by the members.

Mrs. Shirley Clark and Mrs. Jean Voegel will be hostesses at the meeting. Mrs. Stagger served refreshments after topics were discussed by Mesdames Shirley Clark, June Barham, Doris Patterson, Julia Voloski, Dorothy Smith, Rita Barnhart and Jean Voegel.

Mid-Lent Quiet Day at Church

The annual mid-Lenten "quiet day" will be held at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, 22nd Street and Grand Avenue, on Saturday, beginning with a celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 9 a.m.

Following a light breakfast, Fr. Allen E. Smith, O.I.C., a monk of the Order of Holy Cross and the Episcopal monastic order, will conduct the first of three meditations.

After mid-day prayers and a silent luncheon to be served by the Episcopal Church Women of St. Bartholomew's, under the leadership of Mrs. Kaye Acquaviva, Fr. Smith will give two more meditations and the quiet day will close with evening prayer at 8 p.m.

Throughout the day, Fr. Smith and Fr. Wilbur Lear, rector of St. Bartholomew's, will be available for spiritual counsel and to hear confessions.

Too Many Career Education Agencies, State Study Says

By JOANNE LONG
Copley News Service

Educators planning for vocational education are operating virtually in the dark, without the needed employment data, while "vested interests" run "separate, costly and isolated programs," a report just issued by the State Advisory Council on Vocational Education charges.

Locally, the charge is unfounded; there has been extensive consultation between citizens, educators, unions and businesses.

The report says there is a "lack of valid data" on job opportunities and manpower needs in a form usable by either state or local planners of vocational and technical education.

The report further says that "there are too many federal and state agencies having a role in the administration of vocational education in Illinois."

The result is that "vested interests" are running "separate, costly and isolated programs in human resources development."

Efforts by the State Division of Vocational and Technical Education to coordinate activities have been only partially successful because the division lacks "executive authority," according to the report.

Agencies involved in administering vocational-technical programs now include the State Departments of Labor and Corrections, the governor's office of Human Resources, and the main agencies, the Vocational Education and Rehabilitation Board.

The State Advisory Council is a nonpaid group of 30 persons (28 men, two women) appointed by the governor to advise the State Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation. Members of the council come from the fields of education, business, industry, labor education and government.

Other value judgments by the council:

1. Despite reports of 80% or more success in placing graduates, the Council believes that "both placement and follow-up are meager to nonexistent in many local school districts."
2. Employers' needs for suitably trained workers "are not being met."
3. Adult enrollments and enrollments in inner city and rural poverty areas are too small. National standards are that 15% of the total vocational students in Illinois are 19%.
4. Adult enrollments constitute 8% of the total in vocational courses, a percentage the Council believes is too small.
5. Growth of enrollment has been "phenomenal": 886,000 in Illinois last year, 605,500 in 1970, 233,000 in 1969.

"A trend like this cannot continue and have vocational and technical education remain abreast of the state of the art nor step out ahead with innovative and imaginative programs," says the Council.

Vocational education is not heavily enough funded ($15 million from the state last year, about half what the districts asked for). The governor is recommending the same amount this year.

It also recommends, as a long-range priority, that the state districts "redirect local funds into career education programs" to meet "the needs of all students."

The Council recommends "an extensive information campaign to convince the legislative and executive branches of state government of the necessity for increased funding."

Despite the negativism of many of its statements, the Advisory Council commented that it believes "a high percentage" of students in vocational courses are "satisfied" with the training "and feel that their graduates are as good as or better than any other in the school."

Blaser has "blasted" leaders in a number of Illinois towns who, he said, "set on their hands" for years and taken no action, despite state directives to do so, in the misguided belief that no action would be taken if they failed to comply.

He has estimated that as many as 80% of the state's municipalities will fail to meet a July 1, 1972, deadline for construction and updating.

Recently, however, William Blaser, EPA director, said the agency will not consider lack of federal money a valid excuse for a community's failure to begin updating sewage treatment facilities and reducing or eliminating water pollution from improperly treated sewage.

Most applications fall into the jurisdiction of either a metropolitan or a regional planning area, Reh said, with the remainder lying in a river basin area instead. Actually, Reh said, river basin surveys are now under way in all areas not covered by other planning authorities, and a number have been completed and forwarded to federal authorities for certification and approval.

Many of these have already received federal certification, he said.

Man Pleads Innocent
William J. Barton, 22, of 3304 Wabash Ave., arrested at 4:40 p.m. Saturday on a charge of criminal trespass to property at Hoppe's Tavern, 2807 Edwardsville Road, where police had been called to a disturbance, entered a plea of innocent at 2 p.m. Monday. Property damage was set at $2,000. The complaint was signed by James Jackson, the proprietor.

Arrested for Conduct
Joseph R. Palketti, 22, of 1524 Madison Ave., and a juvenile, 16, of Madison, were charged with disorderly conduct at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday after it was reported to police that someone in an auto flashed a gun at a truck driver as he pulled away from a parking lot at 14th Street and Madison Avenue. Police said they found a .22 caliber blank starter pistol in the car.

Two Autos Collide
Auto driven by Loris King, 2521 Grand Ave., and Shirley Younger, 2145 Miracle Ave., were in an accident at 12:15 p.m. Monday at Pontiac Road and Franklin Avenue.

Parking Lot Accident
Auto placed in reverse gear by Donald W. Stucke, 1613 Clark Ave., and Shirley L. Clark, 909 McCambridge Ave., Madison, collided Monday at the Namecki Village shopping Center.

GIRL SCOUTS READY TO OBSERVE SPECIAL WEEK

Plans were made for activities to celebrate Girl Scout Week by Junior Girl Scout Troop 482 at a weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. Skippy Kidman, 3215 Maryville Road. One of the patrols was selected to make a trip to The Colonades nursing home to visit an "adopted" grandmother and other patients.

The scouts renewed their promise at a flag ceremony. A committee, Jackie and Susan Thomas and Debbie Handlon, was chosen for a glass collection task; the troop has been working with the ecology program for over a year, and the Canal restaurant will assist with the collection.

The troop discussed an invitation to the Lincoln pilgrimage, sponsored by the Springfield Boy Scout Council, on April 30. During Girl Scout Week, all troops will celebrate by doing good deeds. March 12 is uniform day, when scouts and leaders are asked to appear in complete uniforms and place trefails in their windows. The girls made "some mores." Present were Teresa Carlyle, Rhonda Crouch, Dawn Glass, Debbie Handlon, Carol Ann Kidman, Janet Nunes, Christy Peach, Robin Smith, Tammy Smith, Jolene Stratton, Jackie and Susan Thomas and Sharon Werner. The troop is sponsored by the DAY Auxiliary.

Admission Plan for High School Juniors

Area high school juniors interested in Southern Illinois University-Southwestern's new early admission plan have until March 15 to apply, according to Howard Davis who will administer the program. The early admission plan for outstanding high school students will begin with the summer quarter and will be limited to 15 students the first year. Within the next five years the program may be expanded to a maximum of 100 students.

To qualify, students must be recommended by their high school principal and must have parental approval. The high school from which the student would normally graduate must arrange to grant a high school diploma in the event that the student decides not to return to high school for the senior year. Students admitted early will have the option of returning for the senior year in high school or remaining at the university, provided they maintain a 2.5 grade point average on a 5-point scale. Those who fail to maintain the average during the summer session must complete high school diploma requirements before continuing university work. Credits earned by students who return to high school will count toward SIU-SW graduation requirements when the students re-enroll. Eligible students will be selected by April 15.

Simon - Campaign Honesty Essential as Dollar Honesty

By PAUL SIMON
Illinois Lieutenant Governor

As my statement this week disclosing my income indicates, I am no Johnny-Come-Lately to disclosing my income and my financial assets.

I am the first elected official in the nation to require income disclosure of my staff. If I am elected governor, I shall work to strengthen ethics legislation in Illinois.

However, dollar honesty in government is not enough. Campaign honesty is equally important.

If we are to trust our public officials, we must demand that they live up to their campaign promises. A public official who lies to the public is just as deceitful as a public official who has had his hand in the till.

In the last few weeks I have watched my opponents deliberately misrepresent to the people of Illinois my proposals for tax reform.

I propose to take the sales tax off food, eliminate the personal property tax on non-income producing property and for farmers and reduce the real estate tax that goes to pay for education.

To distribute the burdens more justly and to insure quality educational opportunities for all children, I suggest that we move toward greater reliance on the income tax. I am not talking about a bigger tax bite. I'm talking about a fairer tax system.

I will veto any increase in the income tax that is not coupled with these tax reductions.

After making my tax reform suggestions, I received an avalanche of advice:

"You're right, Paul, but you should have said it. Do like Ogilvie did four years ago: make promises on the theory people will forget them."

This advice I flatly reject.

I have listened to my opponents' pie-in-the-sky promises where they will increase services and reduce taxes. I watched last week when the incumbent governor proposed a $7.4 billion annual budget, again the highest in Illinois history and a $4.5 billion annual increase since he took office.

In fairness to my primary opponent, he has never run before for public office. If he understood government, he wouldn't be making the wild charges he is making.

The 1972 Richard Ogilvie is the same Ogilvie we saw in 1968, and neither vintage is an economy model.

Anyone who knows my record in Springfield knows there will be a belt-tightening when I am governor.

But glib speeches about easy cuts in taxes with more services elsewhere are political baloney.

Myself, I will continue revealing all my income for every day I spend in public life, the same as I have done since first being elected in 1954.

I am told I have publicly disclosed my income longer than any other elected official in the nation.

In addition to being known as a person who believes in and practices — complete income disclosure, I want to be known as a public official and candidate who keeps his word to the people.

Vietnam Veterans In Session Today At Springfield

Vietnam era veterans who are students at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern are at Springfield today to discuss their problems at a statewide training session on veterans affairs called by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The training session, to be attended by most state and some federal officials who deal with veterans, will include a television videotape produced by the department of mass communications at SIU-SW. The videotape was arranged after Ogilvie met privately with veterans here in January.

The veterans appearing on the videotape and others invited to the training session are connected with the Veterans World Project at the University. The project was started last year with a $24,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education.

Peter Gillham, project director and research assistant, said it is the first in the country allowing veterans to define their own problems in detail. A report including specific recommendations for changes in institutional handling of veterans, written by veterans themselves, is expected soon, Gillham said.

The videotape attempts to explain through the Vietnam era veterans' own words that today's veterans have different problems than veterans of previous wars and that many veterans fail to seek government assistance because they feel the assistance offered is not relevant.

Willis Enlists in Navy, In Recruit Training

Joseph Anthony Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Willis, 2425 Roney Drive, has been active duty with the Navy and is undergoing recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill. Upon completion of the training, he will be granted 14 days leave before reporting to his next duty station or service school command. He is a 1971 graduate of Granite City High School. He enlisted in the Navy Recruiting Station in East St. Louis.

Second Klesh Is Winner Of Steelworker Award

Kenneth W. Klesh, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klesh, 97 Riverside Drive, has won the Steelworkers annual $4,000 scholarship. He was informed by Lloyd McBride, director of the state-state Steelworkers Eastern District 34.

The scholarship is awarded each year to a son or daughter of a member of the United Steelworkers who participates in a four-hour competitive examination. The Granite City High School senior will be accompanied by his parents to Kansas City, Mo., later this month for the formal presentation of the award. They will be guests of the United Steelworkers at the district conference.

It is the second time a member of the Klesh family has won the award. John, the oldest son, was the recipient of the same scholarship two years ago. Kenneth will join his brother

1,700 Young Musicians to Compete at Venice

Venice will make its mark on the music map Saturday when close to 1,700 youthful musicians convene at the Venice School buildings on Broadway in the District 5 "Solo and Ensemble Music Contest."

It will be the first time the district-wide music event has taken place in Venice. Donald Mancell, director of instrumental music for the Venice School District, is coordinating the contest.

Contestants will include junior high and elementary school pupils from 16 school districts and two parochial schools. Winning soloists in the A, B and C classifications will be eligible to advance to state competition in April.

Among the music hunkers will be several hundred pupils from the Granite City, Madison and Venice school districts. Contestants will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and continue to 4 p.m.

Plan Noon Meal

To assist with the influx of youthful musicians, several members of the Venice faculty have volunteered to add the noon meal. Serving a midday meal alone poses a vast undertaking for Venice school personnel, although contestants will be served on a staggered basis, Mancell said.

"Our Band Parents Club came to the rescue and will take care of the food situation for us," the director said, adding the parents' group is planning to serve chicken, hamburgers, hot dogs and sloppy joes. School districts to be represented in Saturday's contest include Alton, Collinsville, East Alton, Greenville, Lebanon, Marine, St. Jacob, Mulberry Grove, Pocahontas, Roxana, Sorento, Troy and Wood River, in addition to the three local districts.

Pupils from Holy Cross Lutheran School in Collinsville and St. Boniface School in East St. Louis will also participate.

Top Rated Judges

Judges will be Dr. Tilford Brooks, supervisor of music, East St. Louis School District; C. E. Kreider, a retired professor of music; Kenneth Smith, Wood River High School band director; Al Hicks, St. Louis Institute of Music; Jerry Fritz, former supervisor of music, Alton School District; Robert Todoroff, Coolidge Junior High School band director; Emerson Schultz, Alton Senior High School band director; Paul Egli, Greenville College professor of music; Miss Marsha Andrews, Kirtwood (Mo.) Elementary School; Mrs. Rogers McLeod, Venice Elementary School.

Jerry Bolen, Gibault High School, Waterloo; Mrs. Robert Key, Eastern Illinois University faculty member; James Wisenmeyer, Wood River Grade School; Mrs. David Rousseau, private teacher; Earl McGill, assistant principal, East Junior High School, Alton; and Michael Scarra, former Gillespie Grade School band director, are judges.

Sen. Percy Assailed on Airport Issue But Stand by Simon Could Be More Vulnerable

Senator Charles Percy's move to the Foreign Relations Committee has proved hectic both coming and going.

He immediately became involved in a controversy with Committee Chairman J. Fulbright, who views Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty as "cold war relics" and an "excusable waste of money." Percy introduced a resolution supporting the stations, which broadcast American-style news to Communist countries in Eastern Europe and are in danger of extinction if funds are withheld.

And Percy's departure from the Appropriations Committee was assailed March 3 at a Madison County meeting of the United Steelworkers' Political Action Committee. His probable November opponent, Congressman Roman Pucinski, voiced concern that the committee switch might jeopardize current efforts to establish a second St. Louis metropolitan region airport at Columbia-Waterloo, Ill.

Pucinski's comments: "He said the new airport would never go to Missouri as long as he was a member of the Appropriations Committee. Well, he's not a member now and I don't know where that airport is going."

He concluded, "If Percy wants to be the darling of the international set, that's fine for him. But I'm thinking about the working man. A U. S. senator from Illinois should be more concerned about the working man than he is about his international image."

Whether the change of committees by Sen. Percy will have a major impact on the airport issue remains to be seen. His fellow Republican, Governor Richard Ogilvie, is a chief architect of the Illinois airport proposal, and Percy consistently has agreed with the plan in his public statements.

The pro-airport stand by Cong. Pucinski is interesting in that his fellow Democrat, Lieutenant Governor Paul Simon, remains publicly uncommitted to the idea. Simon, the likely party nominee for governor, says he favors Illinois over Missouri, but that he wants to be sure a second airport is needed before committing hundreds of millions of dollars to the project.

Simon's uncertainty, despite the documentation of need by numerous studies, matches the current stand of some Missourians who, trying to prevent an Illinois airport, are saying, "Let's do nothing until everybody is sure of the need."

It would be unfortunate for the Simon candidacy if, trying to avoid praising the airport efforts of his opponent, Simon gave Ogilvie an even bigger campaign advantage by appearing to help ignite Missouri's airport "torpedo."

The world may make greater progress when it learns to teach young people how to think rather than what to think.

Charting of State Government Fund Outlook Can Aid Campaign of an Incumbent Governor

Comment by Press-Record Springfield bureau — Politically speaking, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie appears to be winning the battle of the budget. Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for governor, appears to be losing this round of the fight.

That's the early St. Louis reaction in the wake of Ogilvie's budget presentation. The situation could change when the lawmakers return in April to come to grips with details in the massive $6 billion plus document.

At the opening Bell, the governor has grabbed the high ground and announced a Democratic counter-attack to push him off if he failed. It is conceded by Capitol Democrats that Ogilvie scores heavily in emphatically ruling out any further increases in taxes.

On a limited but potentially strong front vote-wise, he made an advance with his bold plan for tax relief for elderly home-owners and renters.

To a tax-conscious electorate, Ogilvie's budget comes across as a hold-the-line document that assures no further immediate bite on the weekly paycheck or additional nibbling at the family pocketbook.

The governor has also benefited by a surprising boost from the Democrats. Not only has their immediate criticism of his budget proposals been vague, but they have not offered any clear alternative.

The Democratic front-runner, Simon, hit at the bonding provisions in the Ogilvie budget, using the charge that bonding houses will grow rich from the state treasury. However, he failed to offer ways of accomplishing rehabilitation and improvement of the once long-neglected Illinois highway system or to carry out building programs in other areas.

There are increasing reports that Simon may be unconsciously developing a public image as a politician ready with drops-of-the-hat criticism, without displaying enough reassuring concern for state problems and outlining specific proposals to effectively solve them. Repussions from his recent tax reform proposals, his continue to spread, with emphasis always on the suggestion for an increase in the state income tax.

Nor was the Simon facade helped by another of those plague-on-both-sides house comments by his primary opponent, walking Dan Walker.

Commented Walker on the budget message: "Incredibly, we are saddled with a Governor Ogilvie who is overloading us with a colossal deficit budget, and dilly-dally there will be no tax increase, and Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who says that besides all our other problems we should pay higher income taxes."

Tact has been described as criticizing the mistakes rather than the person who made it.

Religion is not a way of looking at certain things; it is a certain way of looking at everything.

"YOU DO BELIEVE IN SANTA CLAUS?"

Candidate Jeopardizing Social Security's Soundness?

Copley News Service

As chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas has commanded a reputation for level-headedness in fiscal affairs.

It was before he was bitten by the presidential bug. His announcement that he will seek a 20% increase in Social Security benefits effective July 1 leads to the inescapable conclusion that he is playing politics with a government program that is broad and better to millions of Americans.

Mr. Mills was the prime mover behind a 50% increase in Social Security benefits approved by the House of Representatives last year to be effective next July.

A smooth path through the Senate for this increase has seemed assured, considering the penalty which inflation has inflicted on the budgets of people relying mainly on Social Security for their support.

Now that Mr. Mills has become a presidential candidate, he has decided that a 5% increase is not enough, and that 20% is necessary.

It is hardly cynical to note that he has been mounting a write-in campaign in the primary in New Hampshire, a state in which one out of six voters is drawing Social Security.

Mr. Mills may have his eye more on the calendar than on the payroll withholding stubs of American workers, especially the younger ones.

To pay for a 20% benefit increase, employees and employers who now are taxed 5.4% each will have to pay $9,000 more in taxes up to $12,000.

The maximum contribution by the wage-earner would rise from the current $468 to $648.

Furthermore, to avoid an even steeper tax increase, it would be necessary to put the Social Security system on a "pay as you go" basis, ending any pretense that a wage-earner's contributions are being held in "trust" on his behalf.

This means that money would be going out of the system as fast as it comes in. The stark truth is that those who retire 20 or 30 years from now after a lifetime of paying

State Status-- Aid for Aged on Tax Overloads

By RAY SERATI

Copley News Service

Springfield — Aides to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie haven't completely determined as yet if the proposed new tax break for Illinois' elderly citizens will be in addition to the present $1,500 homestead exemption or whether it will replace the homestead exemption.

Ogilvie's staff aides are presently working out the details of the tax break for the elderly so that work can begin on the proposal when the General Assembly returns to work April 10.

It is expected the proposal will be ready for introduction at that time or shortly thereafter. Once the measure has been introduced, hearings will have to be scheduled for it before the various committees.

The proposal would benefit homeowners 65 years of age and over by reimbursing them for their real estate tax payments in excess of a specified percentage of their income.

Those senior citizens who rent would be allowed by the proposal to claim a percentage of their rent payments as an indirect property tax.

Ogilvie's aides have dubbed the proposal "circuit breaker." That is, it would operate much like an electrical circuit breaker when the current becomes overloaded. The proposal would protect senior citizens from the overloads of personal or property taxes.

The aides point out this is the second time in recent months in which tax relief has been sought for the state's senior citizens. Earlier, the $1,500 homestead exemption was passed by the legislature and signed into law by Ogilvie.

The state would assume the expense of the loss of revenue by local governments. Just what percentage would be used to put the plan into action for the senior taxpayers hasn't been completely determined.

Senate Republicans say they will sponsor a bill calling for the percentage to be set at 7%.

When the plan was first unveiled by Ogilvie, his aides said they felt it would be 8%.

A final determination will have to be made on the level before the bill is introduced in the legislature.

Newsman Finds Sweet-Sour Aroma, Protesting Fish at Chinese Market

By JAMES CARV

Copley News Service

Peking—While Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai ponder affairs of state in the wake of President Nixon's visit, average Chinese citizens are concerned over affairs of the stomach.

Like people all over the world, they have the daily problem of determining what to put on the dinner table.

Where better to see them attacking this problem than at a Chinese market? It's a sight to behold.

Like the teeming crowds, live chickens and turkeys poised atop the poultry counter, live fish splashing in shallow tanks, and the pungent sweet-sour aroma of Chinese everywhere staring in wide-eyed wonder at the strange Americans wandering through their own market.

Only a short walk from Chang An Boulevard in central Peking is Shi Tan vegetable market. Mr. Wang Ren, who says he was a small clerk working for a capitalist before the Communist government was established, is the manager.

Is his market a profitable enterprise? It clears 10% more than it costs to operate, he says, although at times there are losses from spoilage.

But the market has a good eye for business, too. They have sales and slash prices when certain types of food are moving. That does the trick, he says.

Peking is divided into four districts, in each there are 400 markets, most smaller than his, Mr. Hsu says. But at least four others are comparable.

As you walk in the door, the poultry counter looms directly ahead. Live chickens are piled high in one corner, frozen chickens are stacked nearby, and also rabbits and chopped meats.

But most startling is the sound of cocks crowing from a cage nearby and turkeys prodding up and down on top of the cages, gobbling in protest over the swarming people eyeing them hungrily.

On another counter nearby are neatly stacked trays of fermenting pickles. At another, a wide assortment of canned goods, bottles of Chinese-made whisky and red wine, and that potent Chinese white lightning called Mao Tai. Carcasses of whole hogs adorn another counter, and across the back of the store, vegetables are piled high in neat rows — huge radishes, cabbages, carrots, broccoli and onion through the vegetable kingdom.

Priced on a blackboard — only a few cents in American money for most. Prepared plates of food, ready to be popped in the stove, are sold at another counter for the equivalent of 20 cents. That includes the plate.

There is laughter and a sudden surge in the crowd when the fish counter, the attendant has just dumped a fresh river carp into a tank arranged along the counter.

A Chinese woman has made a selection. When the clerk picks up the fish, the victim protest vociferously. His thrashing tail sends water spewing out over the crowd.

The people laugh and shout as they attempt to scramble out of the way.

Once again the clerk tries and once again the carp makes the crowd retreat. But it is a losing battle. Soon he is seared and deposited in a net bag, on his way to becoming a meal.

There are other goods, too — sausages, prepared meats, beef and pork and eggs.

It is obviously a showplace market, clean, carefully managed, a place to show foreigners, but at the same time a functioning establishment bustling with everyday Chinese life.

The market is open from 7:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m., seven days a week.

The vegetables are obtained under contract with a nearby commune, the meats, poultry, fish and other goods under similar arrangements.

Mr. Hsu, who has been the "responsible member" of the market (as managers are called here) since 1958, says he sells more than one million cabbages a month, more than 13 million cabbages a year.

For the uninitiated, that is 13.3 million pounds (one catty equals 1.1 pounds). And that's not bad business anywhere in the world.

The money was turned over to the sheriff's office and will be released to the boys if other ownership is not established.

opportunity to converse with State Representative James Nowlan, 30, who is running for lieutenant governor on the Ogilvie ticket.

But we have interviewed both Neil F. Hartigan, 33, running with Simon, and Neal E. Eckert, 31, running with Walker. As indicated by the ages, all three lieutenant governor aspirants are quite young to be in the running for such a high office. But all seem to be mature, articulate late 1944 well-versed on the issues.

The accompanying photograph shows, left to right, Mr. Hartigan, fiscal agent, State Senator, and Vice-President and Dean Bartinger, candidate for state comptroller. All three of the eastern-born are Democrats, but Republicans have been given "local time" in the Press-Record conference room.

The 1972 elections are no exception. Thanks to past or current travel by the governor and lieutenant governor aspirants, we have had chances to chat with all three of the principal gubernatorial candidates, and with two of the major three contenders for the No. 2 state governmental office.

This does not guarantee sound ballot choices, of course, but it is of considerable help in evaluating the rivals prior to making endorsements.

The most physically impressive by a big margin is tall Dan Walker, the "walking candidate." He has a friendly but commanding appearance, plus a bone-crushing handshake.

Governor Richard Ogilvie and Lieutenant Governor Paul Simon, who are favored to meet in the November balloting for governor, are much smaller physically than Walker but much larger in their direct governmental experience.

We have not yet had the opportunity to interview the two

Scholar Travel Grants Available at SIU-SW

Several limited travel grants are available for scholars and students to do research using the extensive collection of Slave-American imprints in the University of Southern Illinois Library at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern.

Stanley Kimball, professor of historical studies, said the research should be on the social and economic problems of Americanization. The library collection consists of more than 4,000 books, pamphlets, journals, newspapers and lodge records and is particularly strong in Midwestern Czech, Slovak, Polish and Slovenian materials.

A card catalogue of the collection is being prepared for publication this year, Kimball said.

The travel grants provided by the Ethnic and Special Studies Program at the university, may be used from July 1, 1972, to July 31, 1973.

Applications or requests for further information should be sent directly to Kimball, department of historical studies, Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville 62025.

If you enjoy taking a journey back in time, try listening to Viva Records' (subsidiary of Warner Bros.) "Themes Like Old Times — 185 Of The Most Famous Original Radio Themes."

The prologue presents Singin' Sam crooning, "Let's settle back and reminisce a bit." And that's exactly what you and your friends will be listening to this two-record set.

The announcer presents the Jimmy Durante Show and there's Jimmy, sounding exactly as he does today, singing that tender old ballad, "Inka-Dinka-Do."

Remember "Town Hall Tonight" with Fred Allen, presented by Ipana toothpaste for the smile of health, Sal Hepatica for the smile of health. And the fast patter that introduced the show:

"What's the idea of putting a radio in your hen house, Zek?"

"Town Hall Tonight!"

"Those chickens can learn a lot about laying eggs from 'Town Hall Tonight.'"

There's Uncle Don, the "Sesame Street" of radio, teaching the alphabet to the kids. And "Tom Corbett, Space Cadet" — you wonder if the wipers envisioned the moon walk!

A gong sounds and the familiar voice of Maj. Bowes is saying, "Good evening, friends. And spinning goes the weekly wheel of fortune. Around and around she goes, and where she stops, nobody knows."

A reedy rendition of "Poor Butterfly" transports you back into a living room of the 1930s, like the one pictured on the album cover — reading the paper and drinking his Maier beer, morn crocheting, kids do homework or reading Tip Top comics, while from the splendid Atwater-Kent, the family's status symbol, comes "The Story of Mgt. and Marge."

A story of Broadway, beyond the lights of the Great White Way, and the lives of two chorus girls. The house lights dim, the footlights go on and a moment the curtains will go up on the first chapter...

Encourage Music in Youth—Rendleman

John S. Rendleman, president of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, says we should encourage, rather than discourage, the musically creative youth in our society.

In an article entitled "Music and Communication: Maximum Thrust From the Energy Source," which appears in the current issue of the Music Educators' Journal, Rendleman writes, "the most significant amount of musical energy I observe in adolescents relates to their music. This is the energy source. This is where music educators must begin."

"I speak not only as a university administrator, but as the father of a teenage son and as one who genuinely likes music," the SIU-SW president wrote. "Music is among the more creative means of communication that man has at his disposal. Its three essential elements are structure, content and participants."

"The thing that we may sometimes forget," he writes, "is that there exists an infinite variety of structures that we may employ to serve whatever purpose we need."

"Content is important but its importance relates to the process that the content serves," Rendleman writes. "If the content of an education in music does not develop sensitive amateur as well as professional musicians, then it has very little to recommend it."

"At the Mississippi River Festival, inaugurated in 1969," Rendleman writes, "I find myself singularly moved by some of the music in both the 'classical' and 'pop' presentations. Both groups draw on the same raw materials and both are greeted by obvious signs of approval from their audiences."

"The same principle of thrust and reaction that has enabled us to reach the moon applies to the lifting off of young individuals who would like to head for the stars," the SIU-SW president says. "The essential task of educators is to provide a solid launch pad from which the takeoff can occur."

John Sloan Was Good in Arts, Craft in Youth

Editor's Note: John Sloan, 1871-1951, was the son of a poor cabinetmaker who began to paint when he was only 14. He participated in the controversial Armory Show of 1913, became a member of the Ashcan School, and gained fame as a realist. This is another in a series of what famous people were like in their teens.

By BETT ANDERSON
Copy News Service

John Sloan thought books were fifty. By the time he was 13, he had read Dickens and Shakespeare from cover to cover. To him, sports were just good in order to get a job and help his family. He found work in a Philadelphia shop that sold art books and etchings and reproductions.

John's father was not the kind of parent who longed to see his son compete on the football field. He was happy that his teenaged boy was interested in arts and crafts. Mr. Sloan himself was pretty good at this. He wasn't very good, however, at adding up profits and losses. So, at 16, John had to quit school in order to get a job and help his family. He found work in a Philadelphia shop that sold art books and etchings and reproductions.

John's take-home pay was practically nil. But he had a fun time examining all the books in the shop. He became so familiar with the works of Durer and Rembrandt that he could toss off copies in no time. He even sold a few! That was in 1887, when America itself was just a teenager. Some man named Wagner had just invented the fountain pen and another genius had thought up the milk bottle.

John had a yen to learn etching. But nobody in Philadelphia taught it. So John bought a book on the subject and taught himself. He then went to work for a friend, painting greeting cards and matchboxes.

Calendars were a high art form then and were hung in every room in the house. John painted cards of these household delights.

John Sloan drew and painted and copied old masters and dreamed a dream. He even taught himself how to paint with oils by reading a book on the subject. He later became one of the most distinguished painters in 20th Century America. That was because, as a teenager, he had been a disciple of the three D's — drawing, determination, dedication.

Art Forms Part of Life For SIU-SW Designer

Arthur Sandoval, a member of the art and design faculty at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern started out to be an engineering major in college, switched to business and then to art.

"I hadn't realized," he explained, "the potential of art—teaching it, living by it and having it as part of my life. I decided I wanted to pursue something I enjoyed and not worry about making a lot of money."

Sandoval says, "when I worked with Bob Magruder of the American Institute of Designers I learned that interior design isn't just placing objects in a room. It involves the life style of the owner or resident. Art is my life style. I live it. I dress it. This is how I approach my work."

The artist also worked a year with Walter B. Brundage & Associates, interior design consultants in La Mesa, Calif. Sandoval's formal training includes a bachelor of arts degree in design and a master of arts degree in woven sculpture concepts from California State College at Los Angeles, as well as a master of fine arts in that field from Cranbrook Academy of Art.

Three Dimensions
"My definition of sculpture is anything that is three-dimensional," says Sandoval. "When someone gives this three-dimensional object an aesthetic reference then it might be termed fine art. I feel that my woven forms transcend what has been common to traditional weaving and therefore is new to the layman."

Born in Espanola, N. M., Sandoval claims Spanish ancestry on both sides of his family and American Indian one. "I am a descendant of the Tano tribe, now extinct," he says. "I was raised in a Los Angeles ghetto of Mexican-Americans and consider myself Mexican-American ethnically, despite my Spanish and Indian blood lines."

Sandoval, who has also been a free-lance designer and illustrator for Western Lighting

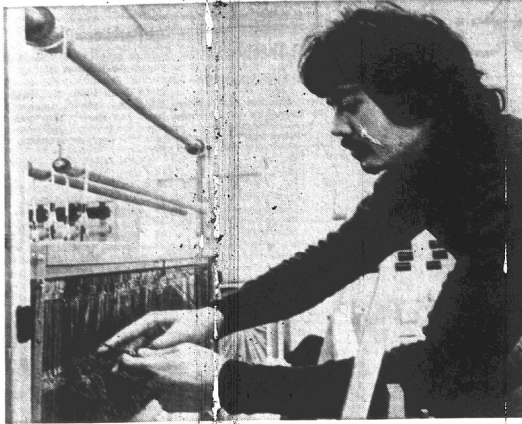

Corp., joined the staff at SIU at Carbondale in the summer of 1971.

"I was working at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich., when I received a call from Cranbrook asking me to pinch-hit at Carbondale for a Japanese woman artist who was ill and couldn't fill the assignment," Sandoval said. "I could have made twice as much money where I was but I wanted to teach so I accepted the job."

From Carbondale he received three offers to teach in Illinois but elected to come here last fall. "I like this location," he explained, "near a large city with an airport nearby. This is essential for me to be able to enter exhibits nationally. Besides, I like the friendliness of the faculty."

Start from Scratch
Sandoval says he also liked the challenge of starting from scratch at SIU-SW. "When I came, I had only my shuttles and my supplies — no looms. These I had to borrow from my colleague, Evelyn Budeneyer. One day we hope to have a full program in weaving-textiles at SIU-SW." The weaving studios are in Building 108 at the Wagner complex and visitors are welcome.

"At present I am applying art concepts to primitive basket technique," Sandoval said. "I'm working into my Indian heritage, wrapping, coiling, twining and knotting. I'm also incorporating macrame, a decorative use of knotting, such as the square knot and the half-hitch."

The 30-year-old artist's work have been exhibited at the Fairtree Gallery in New York City, the St. Louis Art Guild, the Museum of Science and Industry in Los Angeles, the Fine Arts Gallery in Birmingham, Mich., and the Museum of Contemporary Crafts and the Parrish Art Museum in New York. Next summer he will be exhibiting at the Craft Alliance Gallery in St. Louis and the Kramert Museum at the University of Illinois.

Six Tours of Europe Planned for Students

Students at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern will have the opportunity to visit Europe this summer to earn credits in course study and tour the continent.

The trips are being jointly sponsored by the University Extension Services of SIU-SW and the Division of Continuing Education at SIU-Carbondale.

Under regulations of the U. S. Civil Aeronautics Board only students, educational staff and other employees of SIU-SW and SIU-C and members of their immediate families are eligible to participate in the trips.

Six different group tours are planned:

Europe, which includes seven and a half weeks of guided travel through Western Europe and special lectures on the history of chemistry and the history of science in general. The tour will visit major science museums and sites where important discoveries in chemistry were made in England, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden, Germany, Belgium and France. All lectures will be given in English. Director of the tour will be R. F. Trimble, instructor of chemistry. Cost, including the air fare, is $1,350.

The trip to Switzerland, led by Michael Timmerman, will observe European distribution practices at important industrial sites throughout Western Europe. The group will live at Leyssin, Switzerland, while making tours of fashion manufacturing, retailing, and distribution centers. Formal classwork will be given in international marketing. The group will also attend seminars with business leaders. Students will be able to undertake individual projects of particular interest. Cost, including plane fare, is $1,200.

The trip to Germany, led by Sonja M. Lind, is planned for sophomores and juniors and offers 12 hours of credit. Cost is about $950, including jet fare. The group will live and study at Bonn University. In addition to classroom work, students will take field trips to places of historical and cultural significance at Trier and Aachen. At the conclusion of the eight-week course, students will be guided through southern Germany, Switzerland and Austria (the latter is optional), or can travel on their own. An extra $100 will be charged for the one-week guided tour.

The Soviet Union group will be directed by Igor Shankovsky. Total cost, including air fare, is $900. The trip will offer nine weeks of intensive study programs with six weeks of study and travel in the Soviet Union.

Lowest priced of the six tours will be one to Paris. It will cost about $795. Director and instructor will be Claude Francis. The group will spend eight weeks in Paris and will combine formal study of the French language, civilization and literature with visits to museums and historical sites.

Donald L. Brehm and Charles Speck will be the directors and instructors of the group visiting Italy and Greece. Cost will be about $1,200. The group will spend six weeks studying the ancient sites of Rome and Greece. Six days will be spent in England, five in Paris and three in Florence en route to Rome.

Student Volunteers Aid Agencies in Counties

"One of the things I like best about this job is helping people who just aren't sure where else to go to get the assistance they need," says Kimble Funk, coordinator of the Community Involvement Project at Southern Illinois University-Southwestern and assistant to the director of student activities.

The project, in a small office in the University Center, has taken on an umbrella of miscellaneous activities since its beginnings in 1970.

The project's original activity, to find university students and faculty for volunteer work in community agencies throughout Madison and St. Clair Counties, remains its chief activity.

"We're always looking for people to help," Funk said. "We never have enough volunteers."

The largest number of volunteers, mostly students, has been placed by Funk at Alton State Hospital.

"Of all the agencies we help, Alton State Hospital is my preference because the hospital has a full-time volunteer coordinator," Funk said. "That means that not only is the agency helped by our volunteers, but also the people we send benefit by meaningful supervision."

Among the jobs performed by university volunteers are working with emotionally disturbed patients at mealtimes, working on a one-to-one basis with patients on good grooming and assisting the hospital's physical therapists.

The Community Involvement Project has weekly tutoring programs for elementary and junior high school students at the Middletown Neighborhood Center in Alton. In Venice, student Dick Koepfer of Granite City has run a weekly tutoring program for several years.

The project has volunteers working with state and private welfare agencies in East St. Louis, but Funk said the lack of response from East St. Louis students has been a disappointment.

"We try to get people to do what they do where they live," Funk said. "That eliminates transportation problems and has the additional advantage of giving the agencies volunteers who already know the community."

Funk and his student assistants Miss Maurine Sampson get requests for help from agency heads who knew Funk from his previous job as a community worker with the Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission. At the request of juvenile authorities, the Community Involvement Project recently began searching for adults who are qualified to take in teenagers assigned to the Madison County Detention Home.

"The county would like to provide a good atmosphere for these kids in a private residence," Funk said. "They can't be kept in the detention home indefinitely and sending them back to the environment where they originally got in trouble isn't the answer."

Because of the miscellaneous activities carried on from Funk's office, the traffic in and out is almost constant.

The Community Involvement Project has given space and manpower to the student-run Southern Illinois Learning Cooperative (Free University) and to an organizational effort by students to begin a food cooperative in Edwardsville. Next month the project will coordinate the American Cancer Society fund drive at SIU-SW in conjunction with one of the service-societies.

The busy atmosphere in Funk's office is heightened by a constantly ringing telephone.

"We get calls from people who need help with unwanted pregnancies with drugs or other personal problems," Funk said. "We have a file of responsible counseling groups to send them to. We don't necessarily condone abortion or drug use by sending these people to counselors or physicians who counsel in their spare time, we try to get these people not to take rash actions or get into safe situations."

Consent Law Could 'Cripple' Small City Law Enforcement

Copy News Service
Springfield — Illinois State Police have recommended that the legislature be asked to amend the recently-passed implied consent bill, charging that the bill as it stands will "cripple small town law enforcement" and "put us in the tax business."

Capt. Dan O'Brien of the Illinois State Police said his department on Feb. 16 submitted to the Governor's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee the recommendations for changes the state police would like to see made in the law.

The committee will draft actual amendments to be offered when the Illinois legislature reconvenes in April.

One amendment the committee is expected to offer will clear up confusion which resulted when one section of the bill became scrambled during final passage. As a result, one part of the bill calls for a subject charged with a drunk test, followed by a second test given "no more than 15 minutes" later, while another part calls for the second test to be given "no less than 15 minutes" later.

Such "fudging up" amendments adds, Capt. O'Brien said the State Police want striken from the bill provisions now included that would force police, on the suspect's demand, to take him for another, out-of-town test at a non-police agency of his own choosing.

"This could cripple a small town police force," O'Brien said.

"Some small communities only have two patrol cars on duty, say, after midnight. Suppose one picks up a subject for drunk driving, and each of them is from out-of-town and demands to be taken to his own doctor for a second test."

It would be possible for the town's whole police force on duty to be out of town, hauling somebody 60 or 70 miles or more.

"The same thing applies in a way to us," O'Brien added. "We might have to take a subject from East St. Louis to Chicago, or from Cairo to Champaign. We'd be in the taxi business."

The current laws covering driving while intoxicated offenders have been on the books for many years, O'Brien said, and have always provided a motorist can have an additional test at his own expense if he chooses.

"But the reasonable thing to do is let him call a doctor or a registered nurse or a qualified lab in town, and arrange to have them come to the jail and test him," O'Brien said.

There is no time limit on such a procedure, the police captain said, adding that if a person deliberately delays the second test by calling for a doctor who could not arrive for hours, the tactic would be self-defeating when such evidence was presented in a trial.

Unlike some individual police chiefs, and the Illinois Association of Police Chiefs, Capt. O'Brien had no objection to a requirement in the implied consent act, as it now stands, which calls for replacing present breath-testing devices with equipment which will operate automatically, once started, and will give an immediate print-out of test results.

Some law enforcement officials have charged such equipment is not even obtainable, but O'Brien said his staff already has bench-tested two such machines and is preparing to bench-test two more, for accuracy and reliability.

At least two of the manufacturers involved, he said, have assured him they could provide the number of units needed by the time the law goes into effect, next July 1.

The new units are priced at $2,300 to $2,800, compared to $200 to $300 each for the present equipment, when bought in lots of 100 or so, O'Brien said.

Woman Driver Named On Five Charges

Charges were filed against a driver and two passengers in her car following a head-on collision on Madison Avenue near 26th Street. A police officer, investigating the accident, said he was attacked by the woman driver after the accident.

Barbara Melton, 2414 Madison Ave., was charged with aggravated battery, aggravated assault, reckless driving, illegal transportation of liquor and failure to display license. She is being held in the county jail following the accident and the alleged assault on Patrolman Glenn Wright.

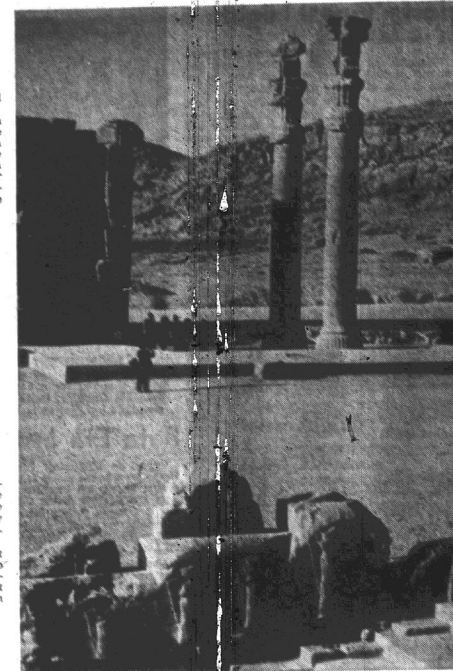

She pleaded innocent on all charges and posted a $400 cash bond for her release.

James Ray, 31, of 308 Kirkpatrick Homes, and Bobby Baker, 21, of 726 Twenty-sixth Place, passengers in the Melton auto, were charged with illegal possession and transportation of liquor and intoxication.

Police said the Melton vehicle was pulling out of a corner on the south side of Madison Avenue, crossed the center line and collided head-on with the car of Miss Janice M. O'Beir, 16, who was injured in the mishap.

Janice O'Beir was treated for injuries to her right knee at St. Elizabeth Hospital and her sister was treated for abrasions and contusions to her right knee and a sematoma to the right side of her forehead. X-rays were taken and both were released.

BUILT 2,500 YEARS AGO. These stately pillars are part of the ruins of Apadana, the "kingliest palace," one of the top attractions of Persepolis in southeastern Iran. The majestic palace erected 25 centuries ago was destroyed by Alexander the Great in 330 B.C. The structure had been completed by Darius the Great about 521 B.C. Archaeologists continue to explore around Persepolis and have turned up pottery that indicates a thriving civilization as far back as 3000 B.C. The remains of the palace include wide staircases, giant halls, courtyards and statues of horses and gods of old.

New City Directories Distributed In Area

R. L. Polk & Co. of Taylor, Mich., has begun delivery of a complete, up-to-date 1972 Tri-Cities Directory, including Granite City, Madison, Mitchell and Venice. The books are being delivered to local subscribers.

The directory contains four major departments along with an introduction and statistical and general review of the communities.

The classified section contains a complete list of the names and addresses of business and professional concerns arranged in alphabetical order under their appropriate classified headings.

The alphabetical section of the directory shows the name, marital status, occupation and address of each resident in the Tri-Cities area. Husband and wife are counted as one name, and is still the minimum age limit of individuals listed.

The third section is the directory of households, including a street and avenue guide. This section lists numbered streets in numerical order followed by the named streets in alphabetical order. The residents on every street are listed along with the telephone number at each address.

The numerical telephone directory is the last major section of the book. This is a list of every telephone number in the Tri-Cities area, with the business who has the number listed alongside.

The first and last names appearing in the alphabetical section of the directory are Junior Aaron and David Euwall.

Ogilvie Favors a Tax Limit for Aged of 8% of Their Cash Income

By GOVERNOR

RICHARD B. OGILVIE

The relief for our older citizens is a must, in my judgment. It is a gross inequity, in my opinion, to allow rising property taxes to add to the already heavy financial burdens of retired persons.

Most elderly persons are living on incomes that are continually being eroded by the other rising costs of living.

Many other states — Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado and Vermont are examples — have already adopted so-called "circuit breaker" tax protection for the elderly.

A circuit breaker, like the familiar household fuse, blows when the electrical line is overloaded. It's automatic and provides essential protection for the elderly.

Our proposal on tax relief will work this way: Any time property taxes or rents of persons over 65 exceed specified percentages of their cash incomes, they can qualify for state grants.

The grant will be equal to the amount by which property taxes exceed the specified percentage of income, but there will be a ceiling placed on the size of the grant to any one taxpayer.

This ceiling will decrease with increasing income to ensure that most of the relief goes to those with lowest income.

Thus the relief they get will not reduce the support of local tax bodies like schools, and the relief is proportional to the severity of the problem.

Some examples may help in understanding how the plan will work:

A couple with a $4,500 cash income from all sources pays $200 in property taxes on a medium-priced home.

They would qualify for a grant at the point where their taxes exceed 8% of their cash income.

Thus the relief they get will not reduce the support of local tax bodies like schools, and the relief is proportional to the severity of the problem.

Some examples may help in understanding how the plan will work:

A couple with a $4,500 cash income from all sources pays $200 in property taxes on a medium-priced home.

They would qualify for a grant at the point where their taxes exceed 8% of their cash income.

Thus, .08 times $4,500 is $360. The difference between this and $200 — $160 — would be their grant.

A single widow lives on $3,000 a year. Her qualifying level is .08 times $3,000, or $240. She pays a property tax of $250, and the difference of $10 is her grant amount.

Persons who rent their homes or apartments would also qualify, and the figuring required adds just one more step: One-quarter of the rent paid is counted as going to the property tax. Here is an example:

A single person living on $2,000 a year pays $70 a month rent for a small apartment. The yearly rental is thus $840, and one-quarter of this is $210. The qualifying level is .08 times $2,000, or $160, and the grant is $50.

Nearing the upper limit of the program, set at just below $15,000 annual income, we could take the case of a retired farmer.

He gets an $8,000 annual income from rental of his farm, and pays a $800 tax on his homestead. His qualifying level is .08 times $8,000, or $640, and his grant is $160.

Thus although his income is high, the grant is as great as previous examples, his grant is the same dollar figure and it is only one-fourth as effective in stretching his income.

To qualify, older citizens will have to make an application which would include the reporting of all income, including sources not subject to taxation, such as their social security checks.

I think this program is the least we can do right now for our older citizens. Their taxes — paid in their working years — built our schools and roads.

We owe them this tangible expression of our concern.

Two Girls Report Kidnapping, Assault

Two St. Louis girls, ages 16 and 17, told Venice police at 12:30 p.m. Monday that a man who had offered them a ride home in his car in St. Louis had brought them instead to Kerr Island where he attempted to molest the older girl.

They said the girl being assaulted broke an egg in the man's face and they fled. They said another man was asleep in the back seat of the car during the incident.

Police arrested two men for questioning, but released them without charge. Venice police men returned the girls to St. Louis.

Rabies Control Needs Cooperation By All

(This is the final article in a series on rabies, a foe of mankind for centuries. The series was prepared by the Division of Preventive Medicine of the Illinois Department of Public Health.)

Five-year-old Tommy has been bitten by a dog. It's though the dog has rabies. What should be done.

The wound should be scrubbed thoroughly with any of the common household detergents or soaps. This is the most effective first-aid treatment. The family physician should be consulted immediately, and the wound should always be treated within four hours by a physician.

Pasture Series
Then a series of injections known as the Pasteur series is begun. Actually, the injections are not a treatment but a prevention, after the manner of smallpox or polio vaccinations. The incubation period of the rabies virus is usually longer than a month. The vaccination on the other hand, brings protection within 30 days. Thus the person becomes immune to the disease before it has developed.

This is a race against time, so it's vital that the vaccinations start at once.

Tommy's series will consist of 14 injections, one each day for two weeks. In severe instances the series may be increased to 21 injections.

Obviously the Pasteur series has drawbacks. It is time-consuming, painful, and is not without danger. Yet, in 1967 more than 500 persons in Illinois were treated for rabies.

Horse Serum
Children like Tommy may benefit from a new material which is prepared by utilizing horse serum. The method is to immunize horses against rabies, then separate the protective portion of their blood. If used within a few hours after the bite, this serum effectively prevents rabies. However, this serum must still be used with one of the anti-rabies vaccines.

If your dog should be bitten by a rabid animal, the safest thing to do is to have a veterinarian humanely put him to sleep to prevent him from spreading rabies to you and your children. However, if the dog has been vaccinated previously, he may be revaccinated and quarantined for 30 days, then declared safe.

There is no doubt the disease can be eliminated. All dogs and cats which could be exposed to the virus must be immunized. If they are not immunized, they may be kept confined so they won't run loose to come in contact with rabid animals. One unvaccinated dog running loose is enough to keep the disease alive. Many strange tales are told concerning the dangers of vaccinating dogs, but none of these tales are true.

No Adverse Effects
In a recent study, 114,000 dogs were immunized against rabies, then "followed" for four years. Of course, many were killed by accidents, but none of the 114,000 showed any damage in their ability to see, smell, hunt, hear, eat or reproduce. In short, none were adversely affected by the vaccination.

The records show the effectiveness of immunization and quarantine. For example: Summit County, Ohio, had 218 cases of rabies in 1945. In 1946 a serious control program was begun; every dog in the county was required to be vaccinated. By 1947 no cases were reported, and only four cases have been reported since.

Denver, Colo., had 120 cases of rabies in 1950, but after a state-wide vaccination program was put in effect, the disease was reduced until no cases were reported in 1955.

When everyone cooperates, control programs can work for cities, counties, states, and even countries. Through immunization and quarantine, Australia, England, Denmark, Norway and Sweden have become free from rabies.

But remember: Rabies control is not just a program to be maintained by your health department or local government. To be successful, the program requires the cooperation of you and your neighbors.

City Awaiting Word on Proposed Sewer Lines

A "wait and see" attitude was taken at Monday night's Granite City Council meeting on the city's four Quad-City townships for construction of interceptor and collector sanitary sewers in unincorporated portions of this area and in the village of Pontoon Beach.

In a brief "message of information" to the council, Mayor Donald Partney said he knows of no decisions on the proposal. A letter evaluating the plan is to be sent to affected governmental agencies by the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission.

SIMAPC officials and Illinois and U.S. administrators met March 2 with city and township representatives. "The meeting ended without a decision" concerning separate plans drafted by the city and the group of townships on city extraction of interceptor lines which would connect proposed township collector sewers with the Granite City treatment plant, the mayor told the aldermen.

Decision on Plans
"I attended the meeting and was informed by both state and federal representatives that Mikesell (Theodore Mikesell, executive director of SIMAPC) will decide which plan is to be approved."

"Engineers for the city and townships were excluded. It was a discussion between the township officials and myself with SIMAPC and the federal and state men to discuss the sewer program," Partney related.

Alderman Steve Basa took exception to reports about plans for a link between township collector-interceptor sewers and the city treatment plant. "I think we've fooled around long enough," the alderman commented.

Suggests Township Beg
"We should just sit back and let them (the townships) come in and beg us to connect to our treatment plant. Then we'll see where we put the sewers." Persons close to the project have said they felt some city spokesmen had taken a "take it or leave it" attitude—that the townships would have to let the city build interceptors or else implying that city use of interceptors is an integral part of the planning which has been carried out. Actually, the interceptor lines as now proposed have the purpose of serving sections in a wide area outside of Granite City, rather than portions of the city.

City Transfers Funds
The council Monday night approved resolutions transferring money from the sewerage treatment plant fund to the sewerage treatment plant construction fund to permit payment of $148,450 to the M.W., Inc., consulting engineers.

The bills include $102,000 in fees for preparation of a preliminary engineering report on secondary sewerage treatment, treatment plant expansion and interceptor installation.

Another $48,450 in fees is sought for engineering work thus far on detailed construction plans. It was not explained whether the detailed plans are for increasing the capacity of the treatment plant, upgrading the extent of treatment, or installing interceptor sewers.

Expansion Seen As Necessary
The city has discussed expanding the treatment plant from 20 million gallons to a capacity of 22 million gallons but most observers believe this is unnecessary, particularly in view of the scheduled Mites Laboratories corn milling plant closing, cutting in half the present city sewage flow volume. BUSINESS SKILLS are being taught at the new Illinois Technical Institute, 1412 Twentieth St. Student Pat Konuch of Collinsville has the school curriculum explained by Melvin G. Siricum, head of the school and a veteran of more than 20 years in the data processing field.

Private Business-School Opens in Granite City

The Illinois Technical Institute, a private business school, has opened at 1412 Twentieth Street and is offering three classes per day in business skills.

The new institute is headed by Melvin G. Siricum, 2200 Grand Ave., a veteran of more than 20 years in the data processing field. For 12 years, Siricum has been engaged in instructing and directing data processing educational organizations.

He has served as educational director of Pacific States Schools, director of the California Business Education Center, executive vice-president of the Arizona Data Processing Center and president of the California School of Automation.

He also has instructed data processing courses in several schools including the Academy of Computer Technology and for the California State Department of Education.

Sircum is a graduate of Golden Gate University in San Francisco, Calif., and the Metropolitan School of Business in Los Angeles, Calif. He also has completed several IBM technical courses.

Approved by State

The Illinois Technical Institute here is approved by the Illinois State Department of Education for key punch, clerk typist and executive secretarial training. Financial assistance is available and a placement service is offered for graduates.

Classes are held from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. weekdays. An evening course, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., also is offered Monday through Thursday. Included in the curriculum are courses ranging from three hours per day for eight weeks to a key punching to a six-hour per day class for 54 weeks in executive secretarial training.

So many of our high school graduates are going to St. Louis to seek education and business skills that we felt a definite need for an institution in this unmet area," Siricum explained.

Sponsored by the Illinois Association for Retarded, the seminar topics concerned a new state program which provides limited residential living facilities for adult retarded, as opposed to strictly institutionalized care.

Facilities such as described at the state seminar are urgently needed in this area, a local spokesman noted.

At a meeting of the Granite City association, also held last week, plans were made for the annual day camp.

Fox to Keynote Area Explorer Plan Meeting

Decision-making is a major responsibility of leadership, according to David Fox, vice-president of the First Granite City National Bank who will present this theme in the keynote address at an Explorer oficers program planning conference, March 25 at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge near Collinsville.

Fox, a retired U.S. Army Colonel, is currently serving in Boy Scouting as chairman of the Cahokia Mound Council Leadership and Training Committee and as a member of the local council executive board.

"The success of any organization depends chiefly on that organization's leadership. I hope to impress on these Explorer leaders just what leadership really is, how it is in with sound planning and decision-making; also how all these elements fit together so that the plans and goals of their Explorer posts materialize," Fox said.

The Explorer officers and advisors will be divided into four groups after Fox's opening address, and four discussion leaders will then rotate, leading the smaller groups in a discussion of different topics.

Miss DeAnne Whitsett, president of Explorer Post 123, a health specialty post sponsored by St. Elizabeth Hospital of Granite City, will lead a discussion on post leaders duties.

DAVID FOX

Orville Harris, Explorer advisor of Post 75, sponsored by Parkview School in Collinsville, will cover the role and duties of the adult advisors.

Planning and conducting successful post activities will be the topic led by Don Lenz, assistant administrator of St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Publishing a post news letter and the general area of news media relations, such as how to get a story or a picture in the paper, just what makes news really news, will be covered by J. Richard Hooks, of Venice, associate advisor of Explorer Post 104.

Other topics will include the Explorer Road Rally, Explorer Olympics and the possibility of an all night "trap" session.

The conference is being planned by the adult Explorer committee headed by Dave Wilson of Granite City, Explorer chairman of the Cahokia Mound Council.

Exploring is the advanced program of the Boy Scouts of America for young men and women between the ages of 14 and 21 years of age. The Explorer groups which are known as "posts" are generally formed along special interest such as general science, law enforcement, health, auto mechanics and just about any topic a group of youths are interested in. Many Explorer posts are organized around vocational interest and sponsored by industry and business concerns.

Information on joining Exploring or any group wishing to sponsor an Explorer post may contact the local Boy Scout office, 1338A Niedringhaus Ave., 678-0688.

Joy Gasparovic Weds Henry A. Lairmore

The wedding of Miss Joy Diane Gasparovic, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Gasparovic Sr., 9 Nassau St., and Henry A. Lairmore of Arnold, Mo., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Lairmore, 2804 Jolson Ave., Memphis, Tenn., was solemnized in an afternoon ceremony March 4 at St. Elizabeth Roman Catholic Church.

The Rev. Lawrence J. Mattingly officiated at the two o'clock double ring ceremony before an altar holding two bouquets of white gladioli and "mums."

Mrs. Clea Judd presided at the organ, accompanying Richard Judd, soloist, who sang several wedding selections preceding the ceremony.

Mr. Gasparovic escorted his daughter down the white carpeted aisle and gave her in marriage. The bride chose a pure white delustered satin gown fashioned with a high neckline of Venise lace masked with satin ribbon. The long sleeves were cuffed and trimmed with matching lace and satin ribbon.

Small satin covered buttons accented the front bodice and rows of lace and ribbon encircled the waistline and edged a front panel on the skirt that extended to the hemline.

She wore an open crown headpiece securing a full length tulle mantilla veil bordered with Venise lace. Her bouquet was a nosegay of white carnations, roses and baby breath.

Miss Sharon Gasparovic, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. David G. Brandt III and Miss Claudia Gasparovic, also the bride's sister, were bridesmaids.

They were dressed alike in royal blue velvet gowns designed with an Empire bodice featuring a front bib of white lace. Lace was repeated at the high neckline and on the cuffs of the long sleeves.

Velvet ribbon with long streamers were worn as headpieces and each attendant carried a single, long stemmed pink rose.

The little flower girl, Christine Noel Gasparovic, the bride's cousin, wore a frock identical to the bridesmaids' dresses. She carried a white wicker basket filled with rose petals.

Jeffrey Scott Shilt, a cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, William Lairmore. Groomsmen and ushers included Ernest Lairmore Jr., another brother of the groom, Mark and Mathew Gasparovic Jr., the bride's brothers, and Keith Darnier.

Mrs. Gasparovic chose for her daughter's wedding, a powder blue tulle dress and jacket ensemble trimmed in matching lace. Her accessories

IS OUR HOUSE THE BEST VALUE IN TOWN TODAY???

We Think So—and Heres' Why... In our opinion the Basement House, in the Granite City area, will increase in value, over the value of a non-basement or slab house with a garage, to the extent that its increased value should, within ten years, be worth the price of a new car to you.

The basement home, has the advantage of easy and inexpensive expansion for additional bedroom or family room, while you are making money living in it.

In other words... the basement house has better, quicker, and higher re-sale value.

Guaranteed twice as long as any other economy car.

Every Volkswagen is guaranteed for 24 months or 24,000 miles. Most other economy cars are guaranteed only 12 months or 12,000 miles. But don't take our word for it. Take our Volkswagen for it.

An owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the Volkswagen maintenance schedule any factory part found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear on service items) will be repaired or replaced by any U.S. or Canadian Volkswagen Dealer. And this will be done free of charge. See your dealer for details.

'Save Your Vision' Week Observed Here

Mayor Donald Partney has proclaimed this week as "Save Your Vision Week" here, calling on all official bodies and organizations to cooperate with local optometrists "in informing citizens of good vision practices."

The observance is being conducted by Southwestern Illinois Optometric Society in cooperation with the Illinois Optometric Association.

"We want this to be more than just another weekly observance, but a really meaningful learning experience that will prompt citizens of all ages to take better care of their most precious health possession—their eyes," the mayor said. According to Dr. Leo A. Roman, president of the Southwestern Illinois Optometric Society, theme of the observance is "Better Vision Care For All Ages."

Through the dissemination of information through schools and the mass media," he said, "the citizens of our community will be awakened to the fact that vision problems, and that the special vision disturbances which predominate in the various age groups, require professional vision care if they are to be corrected or at least arrested."

A highlight of the observance, Dr. Roman said, is the distribution of a new "Dr. Vision's Views" series of vision care tips to local schools.

"The importance of disseminating information on good vision practices to all groups can be appreciated when one realizes that in Illinois alone, over 4 million persons suffer from some variety of visual handicap. Tragically, more than a million of these persons are pre-school and school age, and that impaired vision can ruin their chances of success in school and throughout life."

"We are grateful to Mayor Partney for making 'Save Your Vision Week' an official observance in Granite City and thereby helping our citizens learn how to better care for their vision," Dr. Roman declared.

Builders Sponsoring Courses in Safety

A ten-hour course covering the new Federal Safety and Health Standards has been conducted by Southern Illinois Builders Association. The course was geared to construction management and supervisory personnel.

The course consisted of two sessions, one evening and one day session. In addition to the standards, emphasis was placed on recognition, avoidance and prevention of hazards and the unsafe acts before the accident or injury occurs.

The Federal Safety and Health Regulations for Construction provide that "The employer should avail himself of the Safety and Health training programs the Director (U. S. Department of Labor) provides."

To date seven courses have been held with approximately 315 persons successfully completing the course. Those completing the course will be presented certificates by the Department of Labor.

Conduct Charge Filed

Bernard Lee Carver, 33, of 204 Briarwood Drive, was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge this week at Nameoki and Johnson roads. He was released on notice to appear.

FEDERAL RECOGNITION WEEK March 12-18 is the subject of the proclamation being signed by St. Louis Mayor A. J. C. Verne in the presence of Sergeant First Class Richard F. Johnston (standing at left), a Granite City Army Installation resident employed at the Army Aviator Systems Command. Seated at left is Ruth Shuford, St. Louis, an employee of the Automated Logistics Management Systems Agency, and seated at right is Ivan Parker, Jefferson National Expansion Memorial superintendent. They are signatories in the annual federal awards program, winners of which will be announced at a dinner March 17.

Proclamation Sets Girl Scout Week March 12-18

Mayors of the Quad-City area signed Monday a proclamation setting March 12-18 as Girl Scout Week which, this year, will observe the 60th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America.

The proclamation said: WHEREAS, Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. celebrates the 60th Anniversary of its founding on March 12, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seventy Two;

WHEREAS, this organization, founded with 18 members in 1912, now counts nearly four million girls and adult members from every strata of our society, and continues to serve well our daughters, well our communities, and our nation;

WHEREAS, Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. is deeply committed to building better relationships among persons of all ages, religions, races and nationalities, and is vitally concerned with improving the quality of our environment;

WHEREAS, we in Granite City, Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach continually benefit by their efforts on behalf of this community;

NOW, THEREFORE, We, Don Partney, Mike Saxe, John Lee, and Otto Kreher, by virtue of the authority vested in us as Mayors of Granite City, Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach, hereby proclaim March 12 through March 18, 1972, as Girl Scout Week in the cities of Granite City, Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach; and we further call upon all citizens of Granite City, Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach to give to the Girl Scouts, now and throughout 1972, their continued interest, cooperation, and support so that increasing numbers of girls may benefit from this program that benefits all.

Regional Report -- Airport Land Funds Still Available

(Illinois Metro East Industrial Development Corporation)
Governor Richard B. Ogilvie's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 earmarked more than $15 million for two regional projects, one a $55,000 appropriation to buy buses for the Bi-State Development Agency and a reappropriation of $15 million for land acquisition for the proposed Waterloo airport.

In addition, local counties and municipalities can expect to receive more funds back from the state this coming fiscal year than in past years.

An analysis of the new state budget estimates $23.3 million will be returned to the Illinois portion of the St. Louis metropolitan area. This would represent an increase of about $13 million over funds returned during the current fiscal year.

Contracts have been awarded for two new buildings in the Belle-Valley Industrial Village, a 228-acre industrial complex located in southeast Belleville on State Route 177.

Construction is under way on a 14,500-square-foot dual occupancy structure which will be shared by the Belleville Office Equipment Co. and the real estate offices of E. Renhoff Agency, as well as the sales and leasing offices of Renhoff Development Agency and corporate facilities for Belle-Valley Industrial Village, Inc.

A second new structure is expected to be started within two weeks. Both buildings are near a 51,000-square-foot distribution facility which is in final stages of completion. According to Harvey Renhoff, Belle-Valley president, the three buildings are the beginning of the first large-scale, concentrated industrial construction program to occur in this region in many years.

Major improvements at two traffic bottlenecks in the Belleville area have received federal approval and are expected to begin within the next few weeks. The projects involve widening and channelization of the intersection of State Routes 159 and 161 and U. S. Rte-35.

At Swanson and the intersection of U. S. 30 and State Route 159 at Fairview Heights. In addition, two highway projects in East St. Louis are slated to get under way. Contracts have been awarded to build bridges carrying Ninth and 19th streets over Interstate 64 and to build a retaining wall along Interstate 70 east of St. Louis Avenue.

A 120-bed nursing home providing all levels of nursing care for the elderly will be built in Granite City this year at an estimated cost of $1.3 million. The 28,000-square-foot brick structure will be located on a 4.5-acre tract on Stearns Avenue just south of Pontoon Road. Construction of the project, developed by the National Investors & Finance Co. of Springfield, is expected to begin in early spring and to be completed by January 1973.

A model of the proposed layout of St. Clair County's first park was unveiled by Board of Supervisors Chairman Francis J. Foley. The 83-acre tract of land was donated last year by Heasbly Coal Co. and is located on Douglas Road in Smithton Township.

Application has been made to the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for a matching funds grant to aid the county in financing the nearly $80,000 project.

In general area news, a new heating and air-conditioning firm called Glenco, Inc., has been formed at 9 Dunn Drive in Stoeckley Township. Midwest Reclaiming Co. of St. Louis reports sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1972 exceeding those of one year earlier by Southwestern School of Dental Medicine. The Cash & Carry merchandising program will be featured in a store opened at 111 N. 2nd St., Edwardsville, by Ebbert's Appliances of Alton.

The Granite City Board of Park Commissioners authorized Harlan Bartholomew & Associates to prepare master plans for West and West Granite Parks.

William G. Gilbert is director of a newly created Institute of Transportation, Travel and Tourism in Parks College of St. Louis University at Cahokia.

The Metro-East Health Services Council is asking to be designated the sub-planning agency for health services in St. Clair, Madison and Monroe counties.

Fairview Heights may have its first library by the end of March in the city hall, 10218 Lincoln Trail.

GC Represented in New School Council

Carl Macios of Granite City was among approximately 40 delegates meeting in Chicago during the weekend to organize a statewide Council of Large District Boards of Education.

Macios represented the Granite City public schools in electing officers and in drawing up plans for the new organization. The new council is an arm of the Illinois Association of School Boards, created to provide urban and suburban school districts with a vehicle for studying and resolving mutual problems. The council represents school districts above 7,000 in pupil enrollment.

Large districts usually are the first to encounter such school problems as drug abuse, teacher militancy, racial strife, and other social concerns," says B. B. Burgess, IASB executive director. "Large district boards need a vehicle for sharing ideas and solutions."
